SCOUTS WILL HAVE A PART IN RACE MEET

ARE TO ACT AS PATROLS AT THE MOTORCYCLE RACES TO BE HELD NEXT SATURDAY.

NEW TROOP PLANNED

Body For Boys Too Young To Be Members of the Regular Scout Body Is Being Considered By Commissioners.

Matters in Scout circles are moving rapidly and well, and the work of the boys is becoming more and more noticeable throughout the city. Public interest and attention is being attracted to them quite frequently and at last they are to be given a chance to show how capable they are and how well they have profited by their training.

Work In Public.
 Next Saturday afternoon, when the motorcycle races start at the Fair Grounds park, the fences and the track especially will be patrolled by the Scouts who's duty it will be to prevent accidents to spectators. At each gate there will be stationed two or three boys to give advice and information which they may desire, and some of the smaller Scouts will be in the grandstand to act as ushers and to pass the programs. All of the troops will be in uniform and some sixty or more Scouts will be on duty.

On Labor Day, too, at the celebration given by the Carpenters' and Joiners' Union, the Scouts will be detailed to act as ushers and to assist in handling the crowd. It is also quite probable that they will take part in the exercises and give an exhibition drill on that occasion. They will go into camp at the Fair Grounds in the morning, on Labor Day, and after the day is over will stay all night in their camp.

New Equipment Arrived.

With the arrival a few days ago of a shipment of Scout Stoves from Chicago, the equipment of the local troops is practically complete. These stoves are of hard wood, four and one-half feet long, and made with a notch at the upper end for carrying a flag, which may also be used for waving signaling. It is the plan of the Scouts here to paint their staves with the individual colors of their troops so that a scout may be recognized by the color of his staff.

A number of the boys have become quite proficient in the art of waving signaling, and in their camp tonight will hear a talk on the use of this system, and also the semaphore signaling system, by a gentleman living in the second ward, who is versed in their use.

At the same time that the staves were shipped some two dozen Boy Scout Handbooks were sent, which the boys had ordered some time ago. This book gives various necessary things for scouts to know and also gives instruction in the special lines from which a scout may secure special degrees and badges. Of course, these books are only given after a boy has become a scout of the work for them now. The manual gives, too, instruction for state drill and all of the various evolutions of a scout troop and an all around handy book.

Troop For Younger Boys.
 A new idea which has just suggested itself to the scout committee, and which they are giving careful consideration, is the organizing of a body somewhat similar to the scouts. In Janesville there are a great many youngsters between the ages of ten and twelve who are too young to enter the Scouts because of the age limit of twelve; but who are wild for the same sort of work. It is the plan of the commissioners to organize these younger boys, who could not stand the harder work of the regular troops into a similar body with special work for them. Then as they grow old enough they will be taken into the regular scout troops. This would be a fine thing for the little chaps who cannot enter the regular troop.

Work During School.
 Now that the school year is about to begin, the scout masters have decided that a scout's standing in school and his work in both studies and athletics would count toward his promotion credits. The boys will be busy out of school hours with new things, and often there will be lectures on various subjects of value to them, such as History, American Literature, and very likely Dr. Buckmaster's talks on First Aid to the Injured will be continued throughout the winter. The chief work of the scout movement is to keep the boys out of mischief and at something useful; and this is a very profitable way of doing it. The effect of the work is already noticeable on a great many of the boys in Janesville, who have recently joined a troop.

ELECTRICAL STORM BREAKS UP PICNIC; BUILDINGS STRUCK

Severe Rain and Electrical Disturbance Interfered With Albion Picnic Yesterday Afternoon—Damage by Lightning.

[Special to the Gazette.]
 Edgerton, Aug. 17.—The annual bar-becue picnic held yesterday on Albion Prairie, although largely attended, was not a success, the heavy rain and electrical storm in the early part of the afternoon sadly interfering with the day's program that was in store for the people that gathered to participate in the annual event. A game of baseball was played in the forenoon between a team made up of members of the Edgerton concert band and a team made up of young men from the country. After the picnic dinner another game was scheduled but could not be finished on account of the storm. Addresses were made by a number of local speakers and while the occasion was thoroughly enjoyed, yet it would have been a much greater success had not the storm interfered.

Buildings Struck.
 During the electrical storm yesterday afternoon the barn of Fred Zahn on East Fulton street was struck by lightning. Scarcely no damage was done to the barn, the bolt following a wire clothes line to the house where it disappeared. The fire department was called out but luckily there were no flames noticeable upon their arrival at the scene.

The tobacco shed on Mrs. Wallace Brown's farm three miles north of the city, was struck by lightning during the electrical storm yesterday afternoon. The damage was slight.

Social and Personal.
 Frank Pringle and James Keller, head members of the department store, are in Chicago on business for a few days.

Miss Gladys Brown of Holston, Jefferson county, came yesterday on a visit to her father, H. D. Brown, for several weeks.

Mrs. William Hutson left yesterday for Healdsburg where she will visit her mother and brother the remainder of the week.

Misses Priscilla and Barbara Thompson, after spending the past two months with Mr. and Mrs. Hans Nelson, departed last night for their home in Milwaukee.

William Schrub returned last night from Hunt, S. D., where he has been for the past three months looking after his real estate interests there.

Ex-Governor Alva Adams and wife of Pueblo, Colo., and Mrs. C. V. Hardeen of Madison arrived here this morning to spend the day as guests of Editor and Mrs. F. M. Coon.

A pleasant social party was given last night at the residence of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Hiesman, the occasion being in the nature of a surprise on Prof. and Mrs. Oberdick, who are here from Holston for a week's visit with old-time neighbors and friends. There was a large attendance and a general good time. The event closed with the serving of delicious refreshments and music.

TEACHING FORCE HAS NUMEROUS CHANGES

A Number of Vacancies Due To Resignations Have Had To Be Filled By Supt. Buell For Next Year.

Janesville's teaching force for the coming school year, will have a number of changes in its ranks, due to the resignation of a number of last year's teachers. There will be three teachers gone from the high school and nine from the grade schools.

Mr. Blair, who formerly taught History and Civics in the high school, has resigned to accept the office of principal of the High school at Ladell, Wis. He will be succeeded here by E. L. Roethlis of Edgerton. Mr. Knudson, who coached the athletes of the high school and was instructor in history, will be succeeded by Donald McMurphy of DeKalb, Ill., having decided to go into business activities. The other change in the high school force will be the resignation of William Vismen, instructor in Latin and other branches, to accept a position with the Janesville Bar Wire Works. His sister, Miss Helen Vismen, who taught mathematics last year, will assume his duties. Mr. Buell has secured Miss Bryant of Daraboo, to teach mathematics.

The greatest number of changes will take place in the graded schools, where a number of vacancies have been made by the resignation of various teachers. At the Garfield school Miss Hayes has resigned to study music; and Miss Sayles has given up her position in eighth grade. Miss Klingner of the Adams school, will take a year's rest, and Miss Johnson will go to another city to teach. Miss Cunningham and Miss Hall, also of the Adams school, will go to other positions. In the Grant school only one teacher has resigned, Miss Jolley has accepted a position in another city.

At the Jefferson school, Miss Wilson and Miss Woodruff have both resigned, the one to leave for the Pacific coast soon, and the other to accept another position. Miss Sherer of the Washington school has also resigned and will give up teaching.

With such a large number of positions to fill, Supt. Buell has found his time well occupied, but has secured the following teachers to fill the vacancies made by resignations. Except for Miss Emma Tonn of Milwaukee, all the new teachers will be from Janesville. They are Misses Alice and Mary Roberts, May Henderson, Teresa Hutterdorff, Phoebe Magnus, Carrie Inman, and Anna Dawson.

LINK AND PIN. TWO PASSENGERS ARE INJURED IN WRECK NEAR HARTLAND, ILL.

Chicago & Northwestern.

Broken Rail Ditched. Smoker and Three Coaches.—Two Slightly Injured in What Might Have Been Serious Wreck.

Two passengers were slightly injured when the smoker and three coaches of train 516 which leaves here at 7:20 p. m., topped over last night at a short distance below Hartland, Ill. A broken rail was the cause of the wreck.

The train was going at a very slow rate of speed at the sharp curve beyond Hartland station as it was the intention of the conductor to stop near the signal station a short distance ahead. Had this not been the case it is very likely that a very serious wreck would have resulted.

The engine and baggage car passed over the broken rail, but the rest of the coaches left the track and tipped over on their side. The passengers were much excited and it was feared at first that several were seriously injured, but it was learned later, after the excitement had subsided that only two were injured and those only very slightly.

It is considered rather remarkable that so little damage was done to the train and that the passengers escaped so fortunately. Traffic was blocked on the line for only a very short time as the track was soon repaired and the derailed coaches put in place and sent on their way very quickly.

CAR MEN BUSY CHANGING CARS AS REQUIRED BY LAW

Four new men have been added to the force in the car repair department and a few more will be taken on in the near future in order to handle the increased work incident to the changing of the cars to conform to the style required by the Interstate Railway Commission. According to the requirements of the commission all cars must be placed on the end and on the outside of each train, where there are many of such cars that have the leaders only on the outside. These leaders must be bolted instead of being fastened with lag screws and the running boards on top of the cars, which are now nailed must be bolted on in the same manner.

According to the estimates made by officials of the various roads these changes will involve an expense of between sixteen and twenty dollars on each car. The railroad companies are given five years in which to have all the cars changed to conform to the requirements laid down by the Interstate Railway commission. When cars of other companies are accepted in exchange the line accepting them will likewise be held responsible if they should not be up to the standard.

The additional work brought on by making these changes will keep the car repair force in the South Janesville car box car and Foreman Whitehead thinking that larger force will have to be enlisted to attend to this and the regular repairs.

The four men who were added to the force today are: Lewis Mahopla, Thomas Whelan, Bruno Buggs and William McCloskey.

GOVERNMENT INSPECTOR PLEASED AT LOCAL YARDS

Government Inspector Strickland accompanied by C. H. Osborn, assistant superintendent of the car department, and Inspector LaCourt of the St. Paul system visited the local yards and shops yesterday afternoon and expressed satisfaction with the condition of affairs there. These officials are paying special attention to the changes being made in the construction and changing of cars required by the Railway Commission and seemed well pleased with the manner in which the local employees are conducting the work.

Engine Inspector Daniel Sullivan has resigned his position at the shops.

Four firemen of the Wisconsin division are on duty on the northern division at the gravel pit on account of the failure of men in that division failing to report as they were assigned.

A special train of six coaches passed through here from Chicago this morning, enroute to Canada. All the coaches were filled with men, who are to be employed as farm hands in the northern country.

Stationary Engineer A. Lucht is off duty today and is being relieved by Harry Look.

Carsmith Strampe went to Ft. Atkinson yesterday to attend to repairs on cars at that place.

Fireman Walters is relieving Day on train 391.

Charles Connor, yard clerk at South Janesville, was started on his vacation of a few weeks, which he will spend in northern Michigan.

Engineer Goodland and Fireman Doolley reported for duty this morning and Cole and Shurt who were relieving them went on the board.

Engineer Cole will relieve R. K. Smith on the dispatching job tonight.

Machinist Helper E. Courtney left this morning for Appleton, where he will spend his vacation.

ARRANGEMENTS FOR SPECIAL TRAIN TO THE STATE FAIR

Gazette Is Confering With Northwestern Railroad Authorities on the Matter.

So that residents of Rock county can have one full day at the state fair this year, The Gazette is seeking for make arrangements with the Northwestern railroad for a special train to be run to the State Fair Park on September 15th. The train if secured will leave Janesville at seven twenty-five and run direct to West Allis, reaching there about ten in the morning. The train will leave West Allis for Janesville at 7:30, arriving in Janesville before ten. It would give the persons availing themselves of the train, a full day at the fair on what is known as State Day when the best races and best attractions are to be seen.

The Northwestern line and the Milwaukee road yesterday granted the request of the State Board of Agriculture for a reduced rate from all points in Wisconsin during the State Fair week. It is expected that the State will do likewise in a few days.

F. A. Cannon of the Citizens Trust and Savings Bank, chairman of the State Fair transportation committee received notice from F. A. Miller general passenger agent of the Milwaukee road, announcing the concession and stating that the fare for the round trip from all points in Wisconsin will be one and one half the regular or 3c a mile. This concession is equal to the lowest rate ever granted by the railroads to the State Fair Board and is on a par with the one fair for the round trip that used to be granted when the regular rate was 3c a mile.

The minimum rate on excursion tickets, however, will be limited to $1.00 in other words the rate only applies to points beyond the zone where $1.00 will buy a one way ticket. General Passenger Agent Miller embodies in his notification to the State Fair Board that the sale of excursion tickets will start Tuesday, Sept. 12th, and continue until Saturday, Sept. 16th, with a time limit for returning set for Monday, Sept. 18.

This means a tremendous crowd from Northern Wisconsin according to William MacLaren, who has been negotiating with the Northern Wisconsin members of the Board, A. W. Pohn, of Wausau, George F. Conings of Eau Claire and Ira M. J. Christ of Hudson, to work up sentiment in favor of running excursion trains from the northern points.

Arrangements have already been made for special trains from Marshfield and Wausau on the Northwestern line and Mr. Pohn writes that there would have been enough tickets sold at Wausau depot to guarantee a special train, but in view of the railroads granting the one and one half rate, he is now confident that a second special can be arranged for both special trains run in addition to the regular train service. The first special train will run Wednesday, Sept. 13th, and the second from Wausau will leave with the Wausau military company and the Con's Fourth Regiment band on Friday morning. With the military company it is expected that there will be at least 1,000 state fair visitors.

Enclosed Steel Ensilage Carriers For Filling Silos

For several years we have been experimenting with a carrier that would do away with some of the objections of the old style carrier, and also have some of the advantages of the pneumatic elevator. In the Enclosed Steel Carrier we have accomplished this. It is built of galvanized sheet steel and is practically indestructible. It can be operated in nearly a perpendicular position. All the cut feed passes up inside and in consequence cannot be blown out of the carrier. All the buckets are carried on a single heavy chain belt and there is no side strain, and the trouble of one chain stretching more than the other that has always caused so many vexatious delays in the old style carrier is entirely done away with. The carrier buckets all returning on the top of the carrier does away with the necessity of any return supports. This in conjunction with the fact that the carrier can be set nearly perpendicular allows the buckets coming down on the outside to nearly balance the ones going up in the inside so that only the weight of the cut ensilage has to be lifted. This makes the carrier very light running. It is driven direct from the knife head shaft by means of leather belting. The tightener pulley is controlled by a spring and in the event of the carrier getting caught in any way the belt will slip or the operator can easily and quickly release the tightener and stop the carrier before any damage is done.

The hopper at the base of the carrier is so arranged that all the ensilage drops directly into the carrier doing away entirely with the unsightly pile of ensilage usually found at the base of carriers.

We can furnish an attachment for the top of the carrier to deliver at an angle. This is not necessary however, when the carrier is placed in a direct line with the window of the silo. Can be furnished in any desired length.

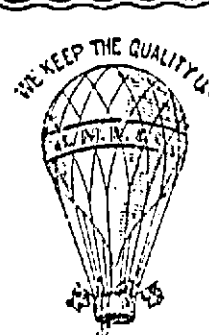

For prices and other details apply.

But a Most Important Section

that will soon be one of the foremost in women's minds is the Wearing Apparel Department. Janesville's most important stock of Suits, Coats, Wool Dresses and Furs is fast being completed. The number of new things already shown would take up all the room that average stores devote to Ready-to-Wear Garments. By the middle of next week we will have ready several thousand dollars worth more of the correct new things. No store hereabouts can hope to make a showing equal to the Big Store's. The very best they can do is to make an attempt. WHY? BECAUSE THEY DO NOT MAKE THE INVESTMENT. Drop in and look around. We enjoy showing the goods.

WEATHER.

For Janesville and vicinity: Fair tonight and Friday, slightly cooler to night. Light variable winds, probably becoming northwesterly Friday.

LEARNING WISDOM.

According to the Wall Street Journal, "It is to be hoped that the report is well founded that the democratic majority of the committee on rules of the house has decided to drop the proposed 'money trust' proposed by Mr. Lindbergh. Such an inquiry, in the spirit indicated by the author of the resolution when he was before the committee, would be not only foolish but dangerous. There is no 'money trust' in the sense implied by such critics; and even if there were an investigation for the purpose of making political capital might unsettle confidence and invite the withdrawal of deposits, the calling of loans, and further serious disturbances to the money market. This could easily happen, not because of any solid reasons which would be disclosed but because of the misleading and inflammatory insinuations involved in a series of political questionings."

"Democratic fingers have been burned so often by monkeying with the financial situation that it would seem to be the lesson of wisdom to keep them out of the fire in the immediate future. Able as are some of the democratic leaders in congress at the present time, and foresighted and discreet as their leadership has been, there seems to be an appalling lack of training and experience on financial subjects. When they had the benefit of the active support of men like Daniel Manning, William C. Whitney, J. Edward Simmons and Charles S. McPherson, they were capable of intelligent and constructive policies; but these men are dead or have no influence in the democratic organization. It is cheering to hear the names of such men as Mr. Quinn and Mr. Lister Strauss in connection with the recently organized Bankers' Men's League, and it is to be hoped that they will exert a sobering influence over their party associates in congress. For the democratic party to enter upon a propaganda against the financial system, upon the ground that it needs reform of the Bryan-La Follette kind, would be to throw away the presidency for the fourth time through deliberate folly."

"There are not the same differences among sane thinkers in regard to the reforms needed in our monetary system which exist upon other political questions like the regulation of the big corporations or the revision of the tariff. Differences of opinion about details exist, but in regard to the fundamental requirement—that the existing banking system shall be replaced by co-ordination and the concentration of reserves—there is little division among well-informed students. If the existing banking organization, has been availed of by Mr. Morgan, Mr. Perkins or other financial leaders for their own benefit, it is the fault of the system. Chubbing individuals over the head or burying them with hypothetical questions about what might have happened if things had been different will not lead far towards beneficial results."

"It is for this reason that the suggestion of Representative Weeks of Massachusetts commands respect, that if there is to be any investigation of the concentration of banking power in New York it should be made by the National Monetary Commission as a branch of its plans for putting the financial system upon a sound basis. This problem should be solved in a non-partisan spirit, upon the best advice of mature and expert opinion. The democrats in the house are nothing wholely if they have made up their minds that they will at least throw no obstacles in the way of such a solution."

STATE AFFAIRS.

It really looks as though the democrats are going to try and get together again. They have tried it so often that the result is amusing after each attempt, but the leaders are always most optimistic until the votes are counted. Meanwhile the republican leaders are wondering just what is going to happen with the redistricting of the state and the assembly and senatorial districts. Rock county will have to adjust itself to the new status of affairs and as far as the senatorial question is concerned will have to consider the claims of Walworth to reconnection. Taking it all in all the situation is most mixed just at present and no one can forecast what is to happen in the next few months before matters adjust themselves."

REFORM REFORMERS.

President Taft and his advisers have decided upon the policy of making the reformers reform themselves. By his veto of the stretched bill and his promised veto of the wool tariff measure, the President has hurried open defiance at the heads of the insurgents. In consequence many of the men who six months ago were most loyal in their objection to the President and his policies are now among his warmest supporters. It is a case of reformers reforming themselves these days.

CIVIC IMPROVEMENTS.

Janesville is slowly but surely making civic improvements. The band concerts can be classed in this list and if the attendance is any criterion, are enjoyed by the public generally. New buildings are being constructed, old ones remodeled and our street car system is being put into first-class condition. New walls are being laid, under the direction of aldermen and our street commissioner is faithfully performing his difficult task of trying to keep the city clean on a small working capital. The Park Association is about ready to begin its annual racing season and use the park for the purposes it was designed. It is a get-together spirit that is doing all this and is commendable. One of the prime factors in this spirit is the work of the Industrial and Commercial club of which organization every citizen that is interested in the promotion of the city should become a member.

The Stephenson investigation is to be held in Milwaukee and Madison and some interesting facts will be disclosed if "Uncle Ike" brings out his precious letter file and tells facts as to past performances of the men who have sought to humiliate him.

Aerial navigation is still in its infancy, but it is the coming sport even if a few drivers do get killed while the inventors are learning how to manipulate their machines.

One does not have to go to the west shore to find sea serpents. If the tale of the wonderful creature seen in the river yesterday can be believed.

Now that the rains have come and soaked the poor dry soil, the farmers wonder if it is going to be summing again so the crops can mature.

Despite the dangers of the sport the aviators at the Chicago meet continue to tempt death with their dare-devil feats.

Labor day in Janesville promises to be a busy one with picnics, race meets and a society circus all in the same day.

Congress is busy now, but still they do not see the end of the special session even looming up as a possibility.

By WALT MASON.

When things go wrong—as things will go in this old belly world of woe—we like to have a go at; to place a hefty load of blame upon some other fellow's frame or talents we devote. When I rise from my downy couch and find I have a large blue grouch, I say: "It's Jim's fault; I never liked that fellow's curves; to see him 'round gets on my nerves; it's time to call it a halt. I might be happy as a bird if that man Jim was interred a hundred fathoms deep; but while he still infests this sphere and hangs around this village here, my province is to weep." But when I've soaked my head a while, subdued the wild attack of bile, I know it isn't true; for all the sorrows that I bear I raised myself with tender care, and nursed them as they grew. When some affliction comes to rack your bosom, try and trace it back—you'll find you sowed the seed; your happiness and sorrow both, when analyzed are but the growth of your own word or deed. So, neighbor, be a dead game sport, and do not pay around and snort and blame some other guy, when sorrow grabs you by the heart and rends your bosom all apart, and tears bedim your eye.

CURIOUS BITS OF HISTORY

ARCTIC ADVENTURE OF THE SHIP RESOLUTE.

By A. W. MACY.

In 1845 Sir John Franklin went in search of a northwest passage, with two ships and 108 men. All were lost in the frozen regions of the north. Many expeditions were sent in search of the lost explorers. In 1852 Sir Edward Belcher conducted such an expedition, with five ships under his command. All five of the vessels became ice-bound, and were finally abandoned. In 1853 the captain of an American whaling vessel sighted a strange looking ship in Davis Strait. No signals were put out or answered, and no crew was visible. The strange craft was boarded, and was found to be the Resolute, one of the five ships that had been abandoned by Sir Edward and his crew. In some way it had escaped its icy bonds, and had drifted southward more than a thousand miles in the 473 days between its abandonment and its discovery. Some things on board had been damaged by water, otherwise the ship was in fairly good condition. By a resolution of congress $40,000 was spent in putting the vessel in first-class shape, and it was then returned to the British government with the compliments of the American people.

FAMILY TERRORIZED BY DRUNKEN FATHER

William McComb Alleged to Have Brandished Knife at Family Last Night.

William McComb, who was tried about two years ago for refusal and neglect to support his family, and who was paroled by the judge, instead of being sent to the state penitentiary, was brought into court this morning and given a severe lecture by Municipal Judge C. L. Elfield and Chief Appleby for failing to keep his promise to the judge to quit drinking and support his family. Complaint was made last night by members of McComb's family that they feared to spend the night in the house with McComb, who had been drinking and was acting half insane. It is alleged that McComb returned home last evening half-intoxicated and brandished a knife at his wife and children. He bore all the evidences of a continued spree when taken before the judge today. The court warned him that it would be the last chance given for good behavior and McComb, who had secured a position in the country, signed an order for the payment of his wages to his wife.

Cronin Case Adjourned.

A settlement of the dispute between Paddy Mulcahy and Cornelius Cronin against whom a warrant was sworn out by Mulcahy for abusive language, was partially reached, at least, in municipal court today when Cronin appeared in the court. The case was adjourned one week, Cronin promising to have nothing further to do with Mulcahy.

PRESS COMMENT.

Yankee Ingenuity. Gatesburg Mill: The one millionth patent has been issued at Washington. One million patents? It is a remarkable record for so few years. The millionth article to be covered by patent is a paper napkin. The success of the American nation has been a commercial and industrial success, and in a very large measure its progress can be attributed to the ingenuity of the Yankee in devising improvements with which to work. Ninety odd million of people we have, but the human machine we have designed to increase our working and strength to several times that number. Counting the capacity of our machines, the American population must outnumber that of China by ten to one.

A Prudent Patriotism.

Chicago Tribune: "Congress today unanimously elected Gen. Cincinnati Lee as president of Hayti," says the cable from Port-au-Prince but, determined to trust nothing to the astuteness of persons in far lands interested in the welfare of this fair country, our two revolutionary factions that overthrew President Antonio Simon. This might have been left to the imagination. A wise guess would have granted patriotism in Hayti this much prudence.

Arbitration Needed.

Oshkosh Northwestern: Because of the strikes of dockmen and other laborers concerned in the handling of London's food supplies, the poor people of that great city are already in the throes of a famine that may develop into serious proportions. The strike may be a necessary weapon for labor, but it not infrequently is the cause of considerable suffering among innocent parties. Peace in the world of labor is as necessary, even more so than a universal peace among nations. Arbitration is the only remedy.

Rather Garrulous.

Milwaukee Journal: Mr. Perkins testified that under the Sherman law no big business can be conducted without violating the law. But when asked if the steel trust is violating the law, Mr. Perkins was quick to reply that it has been able to conduct its affairs lawfully. If the steel trust can do business without coming in conflict with the anti-trust law, surely there is no reason for complaining that the law makes business impossible without violating it. But, perhaps Mr. Perkins is mistaken about the steel trust. Anyway, he talks too much.

Crises in England.

Rockford Register-Gazette: The idea in England seems to be that the way to bring on the millennium is for all workers and all production to stop. It comes to that pass here in a great while, but the older and more experienced men seem to look on the suggestion with disfavor. They are content with past experience. Between the lockout and the strike the old world has its acute crises.

They Don't Improve.

Shelbygan Journal: Miss Florence Hopwood, a graduate of Smith college, has thrown over her college sweetheart, whom she was to have wedded in two weeks, and with marry Charles C. Chase, who has divorced the other wife. Well, what's the use of sending our girls to college?

The atmospheric disturbance to the northeast of New England is evident, moving out over the ocean, as the pressure has risen throughout New England and adjoining states. The area of unsettled and showery weather that has prevailed in this vicinity was still in evidence yesterday throughout the north central states from western New York to Iowa. Rain fell last night in the Dakotas, Manitoba and Saskatchewan. Fair weather prevails in the South, in the upper Mississippi valley, and in the Plateau and Pacific states. It was considerably cooler yesterday in South Dakota where high temperatures had been recorded the day before, but it continued hot in the lower Missouri valley, Omaha reporting a temperature of 100 and Des Moines 102 degrees. High temperatures prevail in southern Arizona also, a maximum of 108 degrees being recorded at Phoenix yesterday, and the lowest temperature last night there was 81. In this vicinity the weather will continue fair tonight and Friday. It will be slightly cooler tonight.

Heart to Heart Talks. By EDWIN A. NYE

THE HOMELY GIRL.

The homely girl is a plain girl. By homely I mean plain of feature. In contrast with the pretty girl. The handsome girl is apt to be capricious and exacting, demanding more than she is willing to give—"uncertain, ray and hard to please." The homely girl is apt to be sympathetic and kindly.

The homely girl knows she cannot win by the arts of coquetry and therefore cultivates simplicity and graciousness. She is genuine, congenial, thoughtful of others, qualities that are likely to win over mere prettiness. "Beauty is only skin deep." Graciousness is soul-deep.

Men may admire the handsome girl; they date on the handsome ways of the homely girl.

More than mere beauty, which makes its impression for the moment, is the homely girl's desire to please or help or forgive, her sense of sympathy, her hearty manner of comradery.

The homely girl makes an ideal sweetheart. She uses no special arts to beguile. She offers herself for what she is. She does not flirt. She is staunch and dependable. She is not difficult to please. She is a safe counselor and will keep your secrets.

The homely girl makes a good wife. When she is called upon to meet the test of wifehood and motherhood she will take up her task cheerfully. Unlike the handsome wife, who may indulge in signs for romance situations or who may complain that she is not "understood," the homely woman looks her duties fairly in the face without fuss and without nonsense.

The homely wife looks out for no conquests abroad, but glories in her home. She wraps her soul like a mantle about her husband and her children.

The handsome wife may have the weakness of vanity and because of her desire to be admired may sometimes stumble, even fall. Danger goes with beauty.

All hail the homely girl and woman! She may not be beautiful in face and figure, but she proves more beautiful in mind and heart as the days go by.

The heart of her lover and her husband may safely confide in her. The homely girl is a true girl.

CHICAGO EXPERT TO PASS ON SAMPLES OF ASPHALT

Material Used in Paving Wisconsin, East and Jackson Streets Sent to Mr. Kirchbaum of Chicago.

City Engineer C. V. Kirch has sent to the Chicago Paving Laboratory of which Mr. Kirchbaum, formerly employed by the city of Chicago as its asphalt expert, samples of the asphalt used in the asphalt macadam pavement on Wisconsin, East and Jackson streets in this city and an opinion from tests made by the Chicago expert on the quality of the material is expected within a few days. The work on the streets has proved unsatisfactory and city officials have been endeavoring to fix the blame in order that repairs might be made. The matter has been taken up with the American Asphalt & Rubber company of Chicago who furnished the asphalt used on these streets and the company has admitted the material was faulty. Representatives of the asphalt company were here on Tuesday suggesting the work to report to the company what would be done in the matter. Considerable delay has been occasioned in making the repairs and the city attorney a short time ago took up the matter with A. E. Rutledge, of Rockford, who had the contract for the work. Mr. Rutledge has been absolved of all blame, the fault lying with the asphalt company. Unless action is taken, however to remedy the fault, legal action may be taken.

"What Fools These Mortals Be"

Of all the fool arguments we ever heard of, one continually used by solicitors of the Wisconsin (Bell) Telephone Co. in Janesville is the silliest. In soliciting business they tell every one that there will be but one telephone company in Janesville in a short time; that the Rock County Telephone Co. can last but a little longer and the Bell would then buy us out. Can't these fellows see that in making such statements, and at the same time asking our people to leave us and become Bell subscribers that they are practically asking them to help the Bell company acquire a monopoly and thus saddle themselves with higher rates? Our people are not quite so foolish, Mr. Bell Solicitor. You probably have already come to that conclusion, after soliciting nearly all of our patrons without inducing ONE of them to change over. Janesville had a telephone monopoly for some 20 years; single wire grounded lines that were so noisy when the electric lights were turned on they could not be talked over; old obsolete Blaine transmitters—merely a wooden box with a round hole in the cover; wet batteries that were continually dripping on the floor; a manager who, if you went to him with a complaint told you if you didn't like the service you could order your telephone out; rates almost double what they are now and only some 300 telephones to connect with. No more Bell monopoly for Janesville, thank you.

AN OLD REMEDY

Beef, Iron and Wine is one of the good old remedies that has outlived a score of patent tonics, reasonable in price, a satisfactory tonic, appetizer and mild stimulant. There is nothing better for that tired, worried, listless feeling or run-down condition of the system after illness of any kind. It tones the whole system, stimulates digestion, gives you appetite, is a good iron tonic for weak, pale children or old people, far more effective than malt extracts or so-called wine of cod liver oil that depend upon their stimulants alone. Beef, Iron and Wine tones and sustains, it builds nature to recuperate, it's a food to the sick and nursing mothers.

Mr. Pfennig, our Graduate Pharmacist and Chemist, prepares our Beef, Iron and Wine. It's always fresh, made from the very best extract of beef, wholesome, properly aged sherry wine and soluble iron.

We don't sell ready-made, hand-made, factory-manufactured, hand-made, Iron and Wine. We believe and know that medicine should be compounded only by the experienced and scientifically trained.

Try a bottle of our Beef, Iron and Wine as made by Mr. Pfennig, 75c a full pint. Note its wholesome taste and invigorating effect. You will be more than satisfied. Get it at the Badger Drug Co., Milwaukee and River St. The drug store that makes a specialty of drugs.

MANY OLD SOLDIERS HERE FOR REUNION OF THE THIRTEENTH

BUSINESS TRANSACTED

Captain Pliny Norcross Re-elected President of Association at Meeting This Morning at East Side Hall.

Captain Pliny Norcross of this city and W. P. Clarke of Milton were elected by acclamation to succeed themselves as president and secretary, respectively, of the Thirtieth Wisconsin Volunteer Regiment association, at the business meeting of the association held in the rooms at East Side Odd Fellows' hall this morning. Other matters of business were taken up at the morning's session, including the reports of the officers and other matters of interest to the old soldiers who are assembled here.

The meeting was called to order at half past nine o'clock and the business session was in an informal manner, much good spirit and fun entering into the work to be done. At noon a dinner was served to the veterans and their wives who are here for the convention in the hall by the ladies of the Woman's Relief Corps.

One hundred and eight members of the regiment attended the reunion and had registered with Secretary Clarke up to noon today. Some brought with them their wives and children and in some cases, grand-children.

The veterans of the regiment who were here, according to the companies of which they were members are given below. Co. A has the largest number, with Companies K and L next. The regiment has lost by death during the past year twenty-one of its members. The enrollment list:

Major S. C. Cobb and Adjutant William Tugger, both of Janesville.

Notes of the Reunion.

The youngest member of the regiment attending the reunion is T. B. Lathrop of Ohio, a member of Co. I, who is sixty-five years of age. The oldest veteran here is H. P. Le Valley of Company C, who has reached his eighty-fourth birthday.

Secretary's Treasurer's P. Clarke of Milton has held his present position for the past forty-five years and ten years ago was elected to the position for life. The formality of re-electing him each succeeding year, however, is carried through. Captain Norcross, president of the association, finds great favor among the old soldiers and when the call for nominations was made this morning, his name was the only one suggested for the position.

In Company I are three brothers, George, John and Joe Garbutt. Entering at the same time, they served with the regiment until it was mustered out, and all three are here for the reunion.

Officers Elected.

At the business meeting held by the veterans of the 13th regiment at the Odd Fellows' hall at 9:30 this morning the old officers, Capt. Pliny Norcross, president and W. P. Clarke, secretary-treasurer, were unanimously elected to succeed themselves.

This meeting was the best that the veterans' organization had in ten years and much enthusiasm shown by the large crowd in attendance. Many stirring speeches were made and the meeting throughout was more proof of the fact that the men of sixty-one are still young in spirit if not in years and that they can feel as none but an old soldier fully appreciates that feeling of true friendship which was given him the days when the country was in the throes of civil strife.

Campfire Last Night.

At the campfire last evening the spirit was roused and it did the heart good to listen to the old greetings and exchange of reminiscences between those men who fought together on many battle fields and then drifted apart to meet for the first time at this their fiftieth annual reunion. The renewing of old acquaintances and the swapping of tales of those war days took up the time after the address given by Superintendent Hurd and others and the gathering enjoyed a happy social time together until late into the night.

Here Next Year.

By a vote at the meeting this morning it was decided to hold their next reunion a year hence at the same place and to devote two days to the event as was done this year. This was done in order to attend the members who live some distance from Janesville to have a chance to have a visit with their comrades as they could not do any day as formerly to come here, attend the meeting and the return to their homes.

TO BE TRIED FOR PICKING POCKETS OF DRUNKEN MAN

Thomas Day, Cobbler, Arraigned in Court Today Charged With Stealing Fifty Cents and Watch From E. H. Vandervilt of Juda.

Thomas Day, a cobbler, was brought into municipal court this morning charged with the theft of fifty cents and a watch valued at $1.50 from the person of E. H. Vandervilt of Juda. Day admitted the theft of the fifty cents from Vandervilt, but denied that he had stolen the watch. The preliminary examination was waived by the prisoner and his trial was set for next Thursday, August 24. Day was fixed at five hundred dollars, which the prisoner was unable to furnish.

Day was arrested yesterday by Officer Peter Champlin, who went in search of the man. Vandervilt was passing through the city yesterday on his way from Juda to Delavan to consult a physician but stopped off long enough to take several drinks from a hotel bar. It is alleged that Day who took the man to a local house park, Vandervilt being under the influence of the liquor he had drunk, fell asleep while he lay there. Day, it is alleged, went through his pockets. Don Godfrey, an employee of the Harlow Canopy company, was passing through the park yesterday morning and seeing the two men together suspected that something was wrong and watched Day. After Day had gone through the man's pockets, he started off down the hill onto South Main street toward the business district. Godfrey followed Day for a short distance and then went to the police station where he informed the officers of the occurrence and gave them a description of the man who had committed the robbery. The patrol wagon was sent to bring Vandervilt to the lockup and Officer Champlin went in search of Day.

LOCAL UNION PLANS GREAT LABOR DAY

Carpenters and Joiners Will Hold Big Celebration on Labor Day—Good Races and Contests Planned.

Labor Day this year, if the Carpenters and Joiners' Union has anything to say about it, will be a big day in Janesville. They are going to make things move by one of the biggest days ever seen in the city, and they plan to do something about it this time.

This celebration, which will be the fifth annual one given by the Union, although the first of such dimensions, will be held at the Park Grounds and will be in progress all the day. The big events of the day will be the races, which will be of two kinds, horse and motorcycle. The horses, as at present planned, will race in two classes with prizes for each class. Mayor Nichols has consented to a number of local horse contests, and a number of local horses will compete, which will add to the interest. The entries are not yet closed, but already a number of people have signified their intention of entering horses.

Other races will be motorcycle contests. There will be three of these, two for private, the second a 61 class, and the free-for-all three mile special race. Harry McDaniel is managing these contests and has already secured ten or twelve entries. Included in the day's program, to be run between the horse races and motorcycle races and other contests, will be foot races, bicycle races and probably a four event track meet between athletes from the Y. M. C. A. and some of the High school athletes.

It is also the plan of the committee to have a ball game in the afternoon, and efforts are being made to arrange a game between the Parker Pen team and a picked team from the Commercial League. There has been a slight hitch in the proceedings, due to certain demands of the Pen Makers, but if these difficulties cannot be removed, a game will be secured between two other teams from the League.

Efforts have been made, also, to secure the services of the Lower City band for the day. As yet nothing definite has been agreed upon in these negotiations due to the fact the Lower City band may not have the necessary time, but the committee is hopeful that they can put the musical arrangements through in this way.

All these things will happen in the day-time, but darkness will not end the day's festivities by any means, for in the evening a dance will be held in Assembly hall, with Knoff and Hatch's orchestra furnishing the music. This will be a very excellent ending for such a day as the Union plans for Janesville.

The Carpenters and Joiners mean to make this a big day in the annals of Janesville, and the celebration has been widely advertised. There should be a large out-of-town attendance, and joy will be unconfined. As soon as the committee has definitely completed their program it will be published and everyone will know what to expect.

ASKS AUTOISTS TO DRIVE ON TRACKS

Park Association Would Like to Have It Packed Down by Automobiles.

These heavy rains have been just the thing needed to make the two tracks at the Park Association grounds good. Now sunshine is needed to dry them out and then genuine racing can begin. John C. Nichols, President of the association asks auto owners to try out the tracks with their cars, taking pains not to run in ruts at the turns and on the straightaways. If every auto owner both the city would run his car over both the tracks tomorrow, it would pack the soil down in most excellent shape. If there was no more rain in the meantime, the use of autos in getting race tracks in shape is a new innovation and has been worked most successfully in many localities. A little later in the season the association plans to have regular harness races as well as several days of good harness racing.

TOBACCO HARVEST DELAYED BY RAIN

Few Fields Have Been Harvested Yet as Growers Are Anxious For Plants to Increase Growth.

Rain in abundance has fallen over the entire southern section of the state during the past week, accomplishing wonders in the way of reviving the growing tobacco crop as well as corn and other growing fields.

On account of this abundant moisture, farmers have allowed their tobacco to stand longer in the hopes of material growth. This delay would have been harvested if the drought had continued as now standing and are not yet ripe. A number of growers have sacrificed their crop for the first time and will allow it to remain for a week or so longer to be benefited materially in the way of size and quality.

It is also surprising the extent in which the crop has picked since the rain. Later fields are now growing with almost unprecedented rapidity and they will not show any effects of the drought by the time the crop is ready for harvest. The harvest season will begin in real earnest next week and by the end of the month or early in September the greater part of the crop in Rock County will be in the fields. This will make one of the earliest tobacco harvests in this section.

Very little buying is reported to date although buyers have been riding through the country looking over the prospects. One or two crops have been contracted at 4 and 7 cents, however the real buying season will be delayed until the crop is being cured in the shed.

THE HAGUE COUNCIL FOR NORTH AMERICA TO SETTLE DISPUTES

International Joint Commission Will Arbitrate All Water Power Difficulties Between United States and Canada.

(Special to the Gazette.)

Washington, D. C., Aug. 17.—The International Joint Commission which will shortly be completed by the proclamation of the names of the Canadian Commissioners, the announcement of the Canadian personnel coming through the British Foreign Office, and the appointment of His Majesty King George, is the first piece of international machinery for direct negotiation of questions that may arise between the United States and the Dominion of Canada. It is a modified Hague tribunal, confined to the northern part of the North American continent. Through the power conferred upon this Commission by the treaty with Great Britain of 1909, the representatives of the United States and those of Canada may take up questions relating to the development and use of the water ways between the two countries.

The primary work of the Commission is in relation to the water boundary—not as to its location but as to its use. There are many plans for the use of these international waters other than for navigation, but there has been no competent authority for granting permits and at the same time properly protecting the rights of the people on the other side of the international line.

Development Schemes.

There are pending schemes for developing water power in the St. John River which forms the international boundary between Maine and New Brunswick; for the development of the Richelieu River, which is the outlet of Lake Champlain; for the improvement of navigation and the development of water power in the St. Lawrence River between New York and Ontario; for a sanitary canal around Niagara Falls on the American side; for the development of water power in the Rainy River between Minnesota and Canada; also for development of water power in the Lake of the Woods, and uses of the water of the St. Mary River and the Milk River in Montana and other questions in controversy.

Deal With Canada.

The negotiation of this waterways treaty, creating the International Joint Commission, is the first step towards an enlarged control by the Dominion of Canada of her relations with the United States. These questions relating to the water boundary are not new. They have been under consideration for years, but they had to be handled in the old way through the diplomatic representative of Great Britain, and the negotiations had to be conducted in the roundabout way of London to Ottawa and back by the same route to Washington. Such indirect negotiations were in a measure responsible for the dissatisfaction the Canadians have manifested with the settlement of the Alaskan boundary.

Direct Negotiations.

The International Joint Commission provides for direct negotiations between Canada and the United States on all questions relating to the water boundary and opens the way for the settlement of all other questions that may arise by the reference of these questions to that Commission. The general arbitration treaties between the United States and Great Britain and France may fall of ratification, but in the creation of the International Joint Commission the beginning has been made in the most practical way on the questions touching the relations of this country and its nearest neighbor, who is progressing along the same lines as here, with the same kind of people who have the same ambitions and the same enterprise touching the development of the greatest water power on the American continent.

The Commissioners to represent the United States have been appointed and are former U. S. Senator Thomas H. Carter of Montana, Ex. Representative James A. Tawney of Minnesota, and Frank S. Stredeter of New Hampshire.

Col. Edwards Retires

After more than thirty-seven years service, Col. Frank A. Edwards of the cavalry, was transferred to the retired list of the army today on his own application. He is a native of Pennsylvania, but was appointed to the service in 1873 from the District of Columbia.

Plan Statue of Jefferson Davis

Frankfort, Ky., Aug. 17.—The Jefferson Davis Home Association is planning the erection of a statue of the former President of the Confederate States on an eminence in Todd county, overlooking the park which now marks the site of the Davis farm. It is expected that the next Kentucky legislature will be asked to make an appropriation for the purpose. The association also is working on a plan for the memorial highway to connect the Davis and the Lincoln homesteads.

Holds Grain Producing Records The Red River Valley Still Leads

The Red River Valley has been known for years as the great wheat producing area of the world, and the wheat fields have paid to the farmers millions of dollars in the past. The soil is still able to produce this cereal, and there is no doubt, but that the returns from the wheat fields will amount this year to a sum larger than has ever been received from the same source any year in the past.

All small grain is raised here, also with success, and native and tame grasses grow in luxuriance.

The Red River Valley also produces fine corn. In fact the corn raised in Polk county, Minnesota cannot be excelled in any section of the Northwest.

Vegetables and fruits are also grown in great abundance.

The idea has grown in some people's minds that the Red River Valley is low and wet. This is an erroneous impression as such is not the case. The State of Minnesota has put in several large ditches, all to the benefit of the valley, which they have in the spring, owing to the fact that this particular valley is drained by the Red River of the North, which of course, flowing north, does not drain at the mouth as early as it does at the source, thus causing the water to back up, and in the past, overflow the land.

By having these ditches the water backs up into them, instead of overflowing the land, and thus relieves this country of what was at one time, a very serious drawback to early cropping of the land. Come in and see me, and if after investigating my proposition you find that everything is not just as I represent it to you, I will refund your railroad fare both ways. Is this not a fair offer?

PLANNING THE MEALS.

A NEW YORK friend tells me this sad, true story. It is of a man and his wife, neither of whom are well. Their breakfasts and luncheons, more often than not, are brought to them on trays. But they have servants, and the lady of the house has old-fashioned ideas about looking after her household, no matter how many servants. She believes also that the dinner should be a formal, dined meal, suited to their station in life. And this is where the tragedy comes in. She wears herself out planning what they shall have for dinner. When it comes to this over-recur important subject of planning the meals, none of us are any too sure of our wisdom. I know I am not. Eating should be a recreation as well as a necessity. But we know that when both these requirements are met, there is still great waste in the meals we plan. The science of nutrition has not reached the point where it offers us perfect standards of what to eat, even if we would follow them. Fortunately domestic science and training are having greater and growing influence on the solution of the practical problem of the daily meals. Experience has shown that large, strong, enduring races of men are raised on simple diet, the Scotch on oatmeal, the Irish on potatoes, the colored folk on corn cake.

We need not go back to this rigid diet which necessity compels. A certain freedom in the choice of foods adds to human happiness, but simple joys are most lasting and safest. Simplicity should be our first guide in planning the daily meals. We cannot reform altogether. We have some regard to conventional standards, but we can use our intelligence, and direct our effort and influence toward making our table well balanced and nourishing, and against complexity and elaborate schemes that cause needless work—and indigestion.

The Evening Chit-Chat

By RUTH CAMERON.

"N O MAN, sir, is obliged to do as much as he can. A man should have a life of his own. I know I am not," I heard a woman say the other day. "It isn't the hot weather at all. It's just because I've been packing my days again. The doctor told me that if I didn't get over that habit I'd be in a sanatorium in six months, and I did reform for a while, but I guess I'm at it again."

Are you one of those unfortunate people who have the habit of packing their days?

You know what I mean, of course—planning every hour, arranging for every moment, packing every instant full of plans.

I don't mean wholly plans for work. They may be plans for social obligations or for pleasures. It isn't the character of what you do that makes the packed day so exhausting. It's the feeling that it is packed.

It's the sense of being obliged to do this and that and to get it done at such and such a time.

It's the constant terror that one engagement will overlap another and throw the whole day out.

It's the breathless hurrying to overtake one's plans if one fails behind.

If you live laboriously and sorely, taking each moment as it comes and not trying to live an exacting schedule you will probably accomplish twice as much as you will by chasing yourself frantically through a packed day, and not be half so tired at the end.

Life is pitifully short and to those of us who have very many interests it is often a temptation to plan for each "shining hour" its duty or its pleasure and leave no loopholes for just living.

But life was not meant to be used that way, as most of us learn who try it.

The head of one of the biggest institutions of its kind in this country was once rebuilding a clerk whom he considered rather too strenuous.

"Take an afternoon off now and then and just lie around," he advised kindly. "You'll be worth more to both yourself and me in the end."

The clerk, being something of a prig, reminded his employer that he had been brought up to observe.

"How doth the little busy bee improve each shining hour?"

"Yes, that's all right for the busy bee," retorted the big man, "but don't you know, my friend, the blooming bee doesn't live but one year?"

Live by a system, if you like. I have no doubt those who do, accomplish most, but don't let it be a system that packs every hour and accounts for every minute and makes a slave of you.

Remember the system is for you, not you for the system.

IT DOES PAY.

MOTHER'S CORNER

By JULIA CHANDLER.

"All that I am, or ever hope to be, I owe to my Mother."—Abraham Lincoln.

THE MOTHER-OF-FIVE was hemming Swiss curtains. "For the girls?" asked little Mrs. Wynn, her friend from across the way.

"Yes, for the boys," answered the Mother-of-Five.

"Why," said Mrs. Wynn, "what does a boy want with curtains? They don't care anything about their room. Now my Jack is rarely in his room except to sleep. It is different with a girl, of course. She appreciates duty things. I'll tell you, my girls would raise a racket if I put any old thing in their room."

"I do in Jack's. He's awful good about it. Never says a word. I brought down a broken chair from the attic for him only this morning. I did think at one time I would put a rug in Jack's room, but his feet are always muddy. I'll tell you it doesn't pay to put anything nice in a boy's room."

The tender-hearted Mother-of-Five made no comment, but her lips quivered suspiciously and the little Wynn mother saw.

"Why," she said, "what's the matter?"

"May I really tell you?" questioned The-Mother-of-Five.

"Of course," said the Wynn mother.

"Haven't you been worrying about Jack?" asked Mrs. Wynn earnestly. "Haven't you been wishing that he did not play with Fred Tyler and that Bohem boy?"

Haven't you wished that he took as much interest in his home as your girls do? Well, I can tell you the reason for these things."

"Go on," said the Wynn mother with all the voice she had left. "Go on, please."

"Yes," said The-Mother-of-Five, "even if you never forgive me, I am going to tell you the truth!"

"Jack does not like his room. It is a source of shame to him. The reason that he is rarely in it except to sleep, as you say, is because it is neither attractive to him nor to his friends. Can you tell me any reason why a boy of fourteen should wish to stay in a room cluttered up with a lot of rubbish fit only for a lumber room? If your girls have more refined tastes than your boy it is because you have cultivated refinement in them to the shameful neglect of your boy. You tell me it doesn't pay to put anything nice into a boy's room. Does it pay better to have him seek a cheerful place in which he may talk to his friends outside of his home?"

O, The-Mother-of-Five was deeply in earnest, for two of her five are boys, and, besides, she has seen much of Jack Wynn and her heart has been troubled about his recent tendency toward the streets, where he has picked up undesirable companions.

"Will you go up with me to hang the curtains?" she asked the mother of Jack Wynn finally.

The Wills boys have a large sunny room. There is no broken down furniture in it. It is furnished with good, plain, strong furniture, and about the walls hang pictures, simply framed, but expressive of each boy's taste. Around the wall runs a moulding, such as one has in a dining room for plates.

"For their bats, balls, gloves, etc.," explained The-Mother-of-Five to the Wynn mother.

Then she hung the fresh curtains, draping them back so that they did not obscure the view from the big window.

Just then a group of boys burst into the room—the Wills boys, some half a dozen others, and Jack Wynn.

"I'll tell you, fellows," said Ben Wills, his face glowing with enthusiasm, "this is a place where a fellow can have his friends and not be ashamed!"

The words were not meant for either the Wynn mother or the Wynn boy, but they cut deeply into the consciousness of both. Jack was looking at his mother out of the frank, fearless eyes of youth, the hurt for a very long time clouding their blue depths.

As for the Wynn mother—well, she stole silently away!

SUMMER DESSERTS.

During the warm weather months we like food that is both attractive, refreshing and satisfying. Cold desserts of all kinds are popular at this season.

A very pretty and tasty dessert was discovered one day when a coffee custard had been carelessly left too long over the heat and curdled slightly. The custard was at once removed to a cool dish and whipped with the egg beater until smooth. Of course, it was too thin to serve as planned, so a few slices of banana were placed in the bottom of some sherbet cups and the custard poured over them, then three overlapping slices were arranged on top. The combination of coffee and banana flavor was surprising.

One could use any bits of fruit at hand, as strawberries, pineapple or any fruit that is liked.

Banana Cantaloupe.—Scatter two table spoonfuls of granulated gelatine in one-fourth of a cup of cold water; dissolve in one cup of hot cream. Add a cup of sugar, three egg whites well beaten, six mashed bananas and a fourth of a cup of lemon juice. Chill and, as it begins to thicken, fold in the whip from a pint of cream. Add a spoonful of milk and mix. Add the cream mixture, chill and serve. Garnish with cherries.

Rice and Coconut Custard.—Put half a cup of well-washed rice into a double boiler with three points of milk. Let it cook until very soft, then set aside to cool. Beat together five eggs, leaving out the whites of two; add one cupful of sugar and one of grated coconut. Bake in the cold rice mixture and bake in the oven to a soft custard. Make a meringue of the two whites and six table spoonfuls of powdered sugar, pile on top of the pudding and set back in the oven to brown delicately.

Blenheim Pudding.—Make a custard of one egg, a tablespoonful of sugar and a cup of milk. Butter a pudding dish and put in a layer of jam; over this put slices of buttered bread and some raisins. Pour over the custard and bake until the custard is of a creamy consistency.

COMBINE SILK AND LINEN

Feature of the Season That Has an Attractiveness Really Unusual.

In the shops there are displayed suits and dresses of linen that are decidedly attractive in design and ornamentation. There are some features that are dominant on many of the distinctive models. One means of trimming is new and effective. It is silk or satin.

It is used as girdles on many little one-piece frocks. Slits, buttonholes and of considerable width, are worked at the sides of the front. Through these the silken shawl can be passed and conveniently removed before washing.

Many of these silk girdles have one that hang halfway down the skirt. These may be at the side, the front or the back.

Rosettes of silk are used on many linen frocks. They are easily removed and give a very easy trimming for a little dress of plain-colored linen.

Buttons of black silk or satin are effective little ways of trimming a dress of linen. It is a matter of a few minutes to remove them or to replace them. They are undeniably worth the trouble.

The extra sailor collars are quite evident on imported frocks of linen, and can be incorporated with the blouse if the color of the suit or dress be of the unsoluble kind.

These square collars are of foulard, of black silk or satin, and of colored silk deeper in shade than the material of which the dress is made. They are frequently trimmed with narrow collars of fine linen or lace upon them and softening the line at the neck.

Cuffs of silk or satin are the natural continuation of the collar idea. They, too, need not be alone in their glory.

As for the simple little bows and sailor knots of silk, they are used with much effect and convincing beauty on many linen frocks and suits.

The introduction of silk on linen is an important one this season. Do not neglect the idea, for it contributes much to the attractiveness of a gown.

The Candid Girl
by Barbara Boyd

Tells the Value of a Dearest Friend.

OUR dearest friend," said the Candid Girl meditatively, "could be of tremendous service to us, if she would be perfectly frank and tell us things we really need to know. She knows us better than any one else outside of our family. And though our family could tell the same things, somehow or other, we fail to take them in the proper spirit from relations."

"Instead of telling us our new hat is wondrously becoming, our dearest friend could say quite frankly that we looked a freak in it, that pink made us the color of a yellow turnip, and that we ought to realize that we couldn't wear the same kind of hat at thirty-five that we did at sixteen."

"Huh!" said Big Brother. "She wouldn't be your dearest friend long, if she told you anything like that. You'd be pulling hair in five minutes."

"If she was a real friend," said the Candid Girl sweetly, "she could tell you that, and you'd be glad for an honest opinion. One gets so few honest opinions nowadays."

"Then she could also tell you," went on the Candid Girl thoughtfully, "that she heard that Jack drank terribly, and that she really thought you ought to consider all that that meant before you let your affections get tangled in that direction."

"A lot of good that would do," scoffed Big Brother. "You'd immediately think it was your appointed destiny to reform him."

"And she might tell you," went on the Candid Girl, ignoring Big Brother, "that you had a most unpleasant habit of frowning, and that if you didn't correct it, you'd lose all your friends, because they were getting tired of it and wouldn't put up with it any longer."

"When it comes to bad habits or faults of character, your dearest friend could certainly put you wise, and it is the part of a friend to do it. For one may have some unpleasant mannerisms of which one is entirely unconscious. People who are not real friends would feel a delicacy about telling you, and some how or other, you do discredit what the family tell you about these things. But your dearest friend, if she tells you in a way the dearest friend should, could put it before you so that you would be only too glad to know it, and you would immediately go about correcting it."

"That sounds too good for this earth," said Big Brother. "It might come to pass in the millennium; but if you think any two girls would bill and coo in that fashion, you don't know the feminine nature, that's all," he concluded graciously.

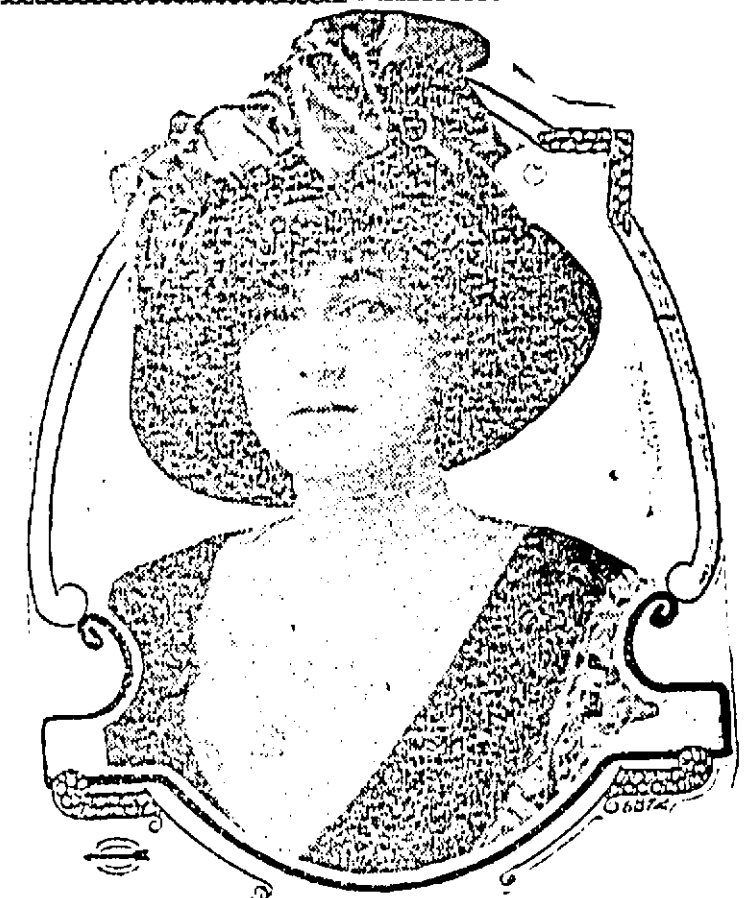

"Well, I happen to know two girls who do bill and coo in that fashion, as you call it. They think so much of each other, that each wants the other to be perfect; and so any little point they can give each other, they do, about dressing, or the influence of other friends, or traits of character that need correcting, or anything of the kind. I tell you, it is wonderful to have a friend like that, one whom you know is perfectly sincere, and really has your best interests at heart."

"David and Jonathan in hobble skirts, eh?" said Big Brother. "You always were an optimist. His, no hang on to your faith in human nature. But I confess I'd be suspicious of a girl who professed all this. I'd be looking for the claws somewhere."

"Women are developing," said the Candid Girl sweetly. "There are not nearly so many of the evil kind as there used to be. There are plenty of girls with big, fine natures nowadays, and when you have one of them for a friend, you have a treasure."

Big Brother smoked on in silence and refused to be convinced. But the Candid Girl bided her time, for though he was at an age when he felt he was an expert on women, she knew that when her dearest friend arrived on her promised visit, he would quickly change his mind.

SIMPLE DIET FOR BEAUTY.

Beauty is more than skin deep; it is in the blood—quality of flesh and muscle and bone, and deeper than these, in the thought that builds the body from material food. "The question of beauty," says Emerson, "takes us out of surfaces, to thinking of the foundations of things."

Whatever may be the true standard of beauty, it is not superficial polish. The reality of beauty is in the soul, whose outward expression we see in the body.

My body is not I, but the expression of me. I am my mind. My body is mine; and as I build my body according to the model in my mind, I can build a different body by changing the model and the material. The Greeks understood this fully. Their heroes were their models of valor, their heroines, of grace; and one word defines their habit in eating, Spartan simplicity.

CHATTANOOGA

A FIFTIETH ANNIVERSARY WAR STORY

Copyright, 1892, by American Press Association.

"What'll it do 's' of they ketch 's'?"
"They'll probably lift me off my feet with a hump cypd."
"They won't, will they? Don't talk that way."
She looked at him with her black eyes and shivered.

"I guess I can get through all right," said Mark reassuringly. "I've done it before."
The girl stood for a few moments irresolute. Then she drew a red silk handkerchief from her bosom and handed it to Mark. It was the only bit of finery she possessed.

"What is that for, son?" asked Mark, affected in spite of himself.
"Ward, of I don't see 's' no more, 's' might keep at 's'—for—Moby of 's' git into trouble 's' might find a chance for send it to me—Jakey might tote it—'n I'll go down—'n—She turned away. It was evident she could not clearly express her meaning, and her voice was getting husky.

"Goodby, my little girl," said Mark, going up to her and taking her hand. "I have a notion that if it is necessary to the Union cause for my life to be saved again you will be on hand to save it."

Then the girl went back to the house, and the travelers went on their way. "Jakey," asked Mark, "can your sister read writing?"
"Necton not."

"Can you?"

"Can I sing like a bird?"

"Do you mean that you can or you can't?"

"I can't."

"Well, your sister is a good girl, and a smart girl, and a courageous girl. She has saved me once, and if I get into trouble I would rather have her near by than a sergeant and ten men."

"Jekson who give 's' the handkerchief to send looked o' written."

Mark looked down into the stupid face of the boy beside him. He began to think that the child's stupidity was not flattering to himself, inasmuch as Jakey had penetrated further than he had into Saur's design, and her diligence as to confessing her ignorance.

"I hope there'll be no necessity for that, Jakey. But we must arrange what we shall pass for in Dixie. Now do you know what you are?"

"I'm 's' little brother."

"Exactly. And what are we going to Chattanooga for? What shall we tell 'em?"

"Go on ter buy calker for maw 'n Saur, 'n gulluses for paw, 'n trecker for you uns, 'n a squirrel gun for me."

When he came to the squirrel gun his little eyes glistened under the rim of his hat.

"By George!" exclaimed Mark, laughing. "You ought to be 'Old Pap's' chief scout instead of me."

"Is that what 's' air?"

"I am just now."

"Golly!"

CHAPTER III.

A CONFEDERATE HOUSEHOLD.

MARK and Jakey trudged on. They met no one on the way, but at one part of the road running through a thick wood they saw a light in the distance to the right in the thickest part. They halted for a moment and then advanced cautiously. Coming to a place where they could get a view of what the light revealed, they saw several men in "butternut," whose horses were picketed near by, lying around the corners of a fire.

"Guerrillas," quoth Mark.

Not caring to disturb those villains, who had no more respect for Confederates than Unionists, they passed on stealthily.

About midnight they came to a rivulet, and Mark concluded to brounce there. They turned in among the trees beside the road.

"Jakey," said Mark, "before we go a step farther, or do anything, in fact, we must fix this money."

He pulled his roll of bills from his pocket.

"Take off your boot," he said.

Jakey pulled off his boot and handed it to his companion. Mark took a number of bills, and ripping out the lining of the boot put it back in its place with the bills under it. Smoothing it down, he handed the boot back to Jakey and told him to put it on again.

"They took a bite of the snake Saur had prepared for them and drank from the rivulet. Then they laid down, resting their heads against the root of a tree. It was not long before Jakey was asleep, and Mark drew his head over toward himself and laid it against his own breast. Thus the two rested. Mark slept at intervals Jakey with all the soundness of healthy, irresponsible boyhood.

At the first sign of dawn Mark waked Jakey, and after they had both thrown the refreshing water of the rivulet over their heads they started in search of a house, at which they designed to "happen in" at breakfast time. Fortunately they soon found such a place. Turning into the gate at the first farmhouse, a farmer's wife received them kindly and gave them what for that time and country was a palatable meal.

Refreshed by their breakfast, they walked on. Various people—countrymen, negroes, Confederate soldiers and occasionally a squadron of cavalry—passed them on the road, but they were not questioned or interfered with by any one.

About sunset they reached a large place set back off to the left of the road. The premises were more imposing than any they had yet passed, and they judged by it that they were in the environs of Chattanooga. The house was a large, square, old-fashioned building, with a very high basement. In the rear were the negro quarters and the barn.

Mark determined to ask for food and shelter for the night here. Turning into the gate, he followed a turning road leading for perhaps a hundred yards to the house. A young girl robed in a white muslin dress of a very simple pattern, and a pink sash, stood on the veranda watching them as they came on. When they reached the steps leading up to where she stood, Mark saw a pair of black eyes looking at him, which, conscious of the deception he was about to practice, seemed to read him through and through. Indeed he was sufficiently confused to take off his hat to the girl with all the grace and manner of a polished gentleman.

"If you please, ma'am," he said, assuming the dialect of a countryman, "me 'n my little brother's gone for Chattanooga. My brother, he's walked a right smart show for such a youngster. Could 's' give us some supper and a place to sleep all night?"

"You can come up here and sit down, and I'll see."

"What a musical voice," thought Mark.

The travelers went up onto the veranda and sat on some wooden benches ranged along the rail.

"Have you come far?" asked the girl, who regarded them with evident curiosity.

"From our little farm on the So-quantilla."

"Your brother does look tired. Are you hungry, little boy?"

"Is it a-gittin' dark?"

"Why, yes," she said, surprised.

"What has that to do with it?"

"I'm hungry just as a-riling," and Jakey's little eyes glistened at the thought of a hot supper.

The young lady laughed and went into the house.

"Mamma, there's a young countryman and his little brother out in the gallery. They want some supper and a bed for the night."

An elderly lady, with two white puff curls on either side of her face, looked up from a book she was reading. Her appearance was dignified and refined.

"The young man looks quite like a gentleman, if he is a countryman."

"We must be very cautious, Laura; you know how we are situated; your father and brother away and no man in the house, we can't let strangers sleep here. But they may have something to eat, and perhaps it might do to let them sleep in the barn if they look right."

"Where shall they have their supper?"

"Have it put on the hall table down stairs."

The daughter paused a moment and thought.

"Do you know, mamma, I can't exactly feel satisfied to put the elder brother in a place given up to the servants."

"What nonsense, Laura! We are taking a great risk to let them into the house at all. Heaven grant that the horses are not all taken before morning. The man may be in league with a band of guerrillas, for all we know."

The daughter withdrew, for the moment quite impressed with her mother's prudence. As she stepped out on the veranda Mark rose respectfully and stood looking into her black eyes with his blue ones. Her mother's caution fled away before that honest countenance.

"You can have some supper," she said, "if you care to eat it in the lower hall, and you can sleep—you can sleep!"

Mark was bowing his thanks.

"Would you mind sleeping in?"—She paused again.

"The barn? Certainly not."

"You know these are troublous times," she said apologetically, "and we are alone. I mean we haven't many men in the house," she quickly added, conscious of having made known the household's weakness to a stranger.

Mark smiled. The young lady was looking at him as he did so, and she thought he had a very charming smile.

"We will sleep anywhere you choose to put us. Leastways we ain't particular."

The first sentence was spoken in his natural way; the second in dialect. Mark's manner of speaking to her was singularly mixed.

"I suppose your men are fighting our battles," he remarked to relieve an awkward pause.

"Papa is away."

"Have you no brothers?"

"Yes, one; he is fighting for the Confederacy."

"And your father—is he at the war?"

"No; papa does not care much about the war."

"Perhaps he's a Union man."

"Well, yes, Papa is Union."

Mark concluded to hazard a surmise. "Has he driven out?" he asked.

"Not exactly," she said, with a frown. "He's gone north, though."

She did not like to tell the whole story to a stranger, who was gradually getting a good deal of information. Her father had come to Chattanooga from the north years before, where he had married a southern woman. After the opening of the war, on account of his pronounced Union sentiments, he had been warned several times to leave, and his family were much relieved when he was well away from the danger that threatened him.

"You are divided," said Mark, "as we are. Now, my little brother hays's a Union boy, I'm Confederate."

There was a pause, and the girl, remarking that she would see about their supper, turned and went into the house.

It was quite dark before supper was announced. The mistress of the house came out, and as Mark saw her eying them both he knew that she came to have a look at them. Fortunately for him, the darkness prevented her getting a good view of him. Mark at once commenced to probe a mother's heart by dwelling on the tired condition of little Jakey, and kept it up till the lady was quite unwilling to send the boy to sleep in the barn. She inwardly resolved that the child should have a comfortable bed.

Jakey ate a hearty supper—the heartier for the delay—and the two wayfarers were shown up stairs to a large room with a big bed in it. A few sticks were lighted on the hearth to dry the dampness, for the room had been long unused, and there was a general air of comfort. Jakey, who had never seen such luxury, rolled his little eyes about and wondered. But he was too tired to waste much time in admiration. He was soon in bed and asleep.

Mark took his pipe and went down to the yard to have a smoke. Going back to the barn he entered into conversation with an old dorky sitting on a barrel by the stable door and evidently master of the horse.

"The night, uncle."

"Yes, bery fine night, sah."

"That's not very good tobacco you're smoking, uncle. You'd better take some o' this hysr."

"Thank 's', sah."

"Do you hear any news, uncle?"

"Dah! My name's Dan'l, sah. No, sah; I don't git no news 'cept de saviors is getting mighty thick at Chattanooga."

"Do you know how many are there?"

"I reckon 'bout free hundred thousand."

Mark laughed.

"You're not much at figures," he said.

"No, sah, I ain't got no lumen."

"Uncle, I shan't want anything of you while I am hysr, but you must have some'n to remember me by all the same," and Mark put a new crisp version with an old dorky sitting on a barrel by the stable door and evidently master of the horse.

HAS GROVER COME BACK IN TAFT? PSYCHOLOGISTS WANT TO KNOW.—PRESIDENT TAFT.

The psychologists are busy. So are the second-handers. The psychonephropaths, and those who tell the past, present and future by a simple twist of the erpichium accompanied by a still simpler twist of a silver coin across the palm. Those who gaze into crystals are interested and so are those who solve the problems of the universe and the great unknown through the medium of theosophy or the more humble playing card.

They have struck abroad new lead, the best lead since the first spook played the first tambourine behind the curtains of a cabinet. The excitement is all caused by the new painting of President Taft, which is reproduced above.

The expression on the countenance in the new painting is not characteristic of the president. He does not usually look like a man whose mother-in-law has come to spend the summer with him. He generally looks pleasant, but this picture looks a lot like him when he is peeved. He looks like this every time he thinks of the pompous senator from Wisconsin. It is really a good picture of him when he is suffering from an attack of neuter indignation. Those who have gazed upon the painting see in it a reproduction of the building countenance of Grover Cleveland and it has set them to thinking. The resemblance is striking.

Taft looks like Cleveland and he is about the same size around the equator. And come to think about it, he acts a good deal like the immortal Grover, too, when he gets on his dignity and feels that anybody is trying to hum him.

NEW CONSTITUTION OF PORTUGAL READY FOR THE PEOPLE

With Some Minor Changes Document Is Now Prepared—Power in Two Houses of Legislature.

Lisbon, Aug. 17.—Although there may yet be some minor changes made in the constitution already drafted by the assembly recently elected to establish the present Portuguese republic upon a regular basis, it seems certain that in its main essentials, the fundamental law will stand as now outlined.

Power to Legislature. The plan is to place practically the whole of the governmental power in the hands of a national legislature of two chambers, the lower one popularly elected and the upper chosen by the country's various municipal councils and other similar corporations.

Both the president and the members of the cabinet will be chosen by the legislature, the president for a term of four years and the cabinet members for so long as they are able to maintain a majority in the two chambers. The cabinet will, while it remains in office, exercise executive authority, but the president's powers will be considerably more limited than in France.

Uncertain As to President. Who will be elected president is as yet decidedly uncertain but the present provisional executive, Dr. Theophilo Braga, seems unlikely to be a candidate. Those whose names are most frequently mentioned for the office are: Dr. Bernardino Machado, present minister of foreign affairs; Dr. Alfonso Costa, present minister of justice; Dr. Manuel d'Arraga, a prominent lawyer; and Dr. Sebastiao Mota, a leading journalist and one of the earliest and most influential agitators for the substitution of a republic for monarchy.

Taxes Remain High. Though the heads of the provisional government maintained from the first that it would probably be a long time before the burden of taxation upon the people could be materially lightened, considerable progress has nevertheless been made in the direction of relieving the appalling poverty of these people.

The most important of these steps took the form of a correction of the system of paying rents, which were formerly collected six months in advance, in addition to which the government levied a tax upon the tenants in proportion to the amount of rent paid. By a decree of the provisional government collection can now be enforced only a single month in advance and tenants paying no more than $10 monthly are not taxed at all.

By way of lessening the amount of illiteracy—nearly three-fourths of the population being at present unable to read—the provisional government has also been opening free schools all over the country.

Takes Poison For Medicine and Dies. N. W. Salade, prominent Fond du Lac business man, died when he mistook poison for medicine.

Fond du Lac, Wis., Aug. 17.—Thinking he was taking sodium phosphate, a medicine, he really took cyanide of potassium, a deadly poison. Nathaniel W. Salade, aged 40, prominent business man, drank the poison this morning which caused his death before medical aid could reach him.

KILLING OF COWS WAS SPITE WORK

Neighbor of Mrs. Hausman of Shopiere Suspected of Stabbing Cows in Field Tuesday Night.

Spite on the part of a neighbor, who it is alleged, made threats to harm her property, is thought to have been the cause for the attempt made to kill two cows belonging to Mrs. Hausman, living near the village of Shopiere, on Tuesday night. The matter was investigated yesterday by District Attorney Stanley G. Dunlap and Sheriff H. H. Hanson. One of the animals, which was stabbed on the right side of the ribs, will probably die. The other was cut on the throat, but the knife apparently slipped and cut along the side of the jaw, which will not result in the loss of the cow. From tracks near the place where the cows were stabbed it would appear that whoever did it came in a buggy and that one of the cows had been cut while lying down. One of the neighbors heard the cattle bellowing in the night but the stabbing was not discovered until morning when one of Mrs. Hausman's sons went after the cows. That it was the man's intention to kill the cow was indicated by the fact that the one animal was slashed on the right side, while a cut on the left side would not prove so disastrous. The opinion is that the offense was committed by a neighbor against whom Mrs. Hausman's daughter made a complaint some time ago. The man has not been seen of late, but it is thought he has been in the neighborhood. It is said he made threats to harm her property if the complaint was prosecuted.

Mrs. Hausman is a widow, who with the aid of her two boys and the daughter run the farm on which she lives. All have to pitch in and help with the work and the loss of the cow will be keenly felt. It was a dastardly act on the part of the guilty person.

No Clue To Robbers: Sheriff Hanson went to Milton Junction today to investigate further regarding the post-office robbery there Tuesday night. No clues to the guilty parties have been secured.

Taft Is To Veto Tariff Bills As They Are Passed At This Session

No Doubt Remains on This Subject After Today's Cabinet Meeting—Approves New Statehood Bill.

Washington, Aug. 17.—Following a special meeting of the cabinet today the last remaining doubt of the President's attitude on the tariff bill was swept away. It was stated that Taft's veto message might be in the House late today and it was indicated that any tariff revision bill this session will be vetoed.

Reach Agreement. The standard conference have reached a complete agreement. This agreement is said to conform with the President's wishes and undoubtedly means statehood for the two territories this session.

Made a Coup. There was an unexpected move today when the iron and steel amendment bill offered by Bacon, a democrat, was adopted, 28 to 25. The amendment is exactly similar to an amendment originally made by Cummins, who withdrew it today.

Caused Sensation. The Bacon amendment was adopted by a combination of democrats and regular republicans. Seldom has any transactions of the senate created so great a sensation as the break between the democrats and the progressive republicans.

La Follette Ready. When the house tariff bill was about to be acted upon this afternoon, La Follette sprung his substitute for the original bill and amendments. The senator then launched into an extended speech.

Wiley Again. Dr. Wiley, before the House committee, today declared that the ruling adverse to the so-called "corn syrup manufacturing interests" was promulgated by the bureau of chemistry of the food and drug inspection board, and Secretary Wilson himself had suddenly been changed into a favorable opinion without being referred to him or his associates.

Made Charges. Wiley charged that manufacturers of this product had offered money to prominent commercial chemists in the United States to secure opinions supporting their contention that "corn syrup" was a proper name for glucose.

Farmer's Bill. (By United Press.) Washington, D. C., Aug. 17.—The conference report on the farmer's free list bill passed the House today and the measure will go to President Taft when the senate accepts two minor amendments.

The House practically agreed to the bill in the form in which it passed the senate, withdrawing its amendment placing lemon on the free list. It insisted, however, on the elimination of corn from the reciprocal list.

Approves Bill. According to Senator Smith, republican of Michigan, President Taft today gave his approval of the New Mexico-Arizona statehood compromise bill eliminating the repeal of judges, and said if it passed that he would sign it.

Boy Shoots Himself; Dies in Short Time. Eighteen Year Old Boy Shot Himself in the Breast With a 32-Caliber Rifle; Died Soon After.

Chippewa Falls, Wis., Aug. 17.—Adolph Froehlicher, aged 18, accidentally shot himself in the right breast with a thirty-two caliber rifle and expired in five minutes yesterday.

FRIGHTFUL MIXTURE KILLS THREE MEN

Indianapolis, Aug. 17.—Three men are dead, one is dying and another stricken blind for life at Whitestown, Ind., today as the result of drinking a concoction prepared with wood alcohol, mistaken for grain alcohol.

Another License: A fourth marriage license was issued by the county clerk at three o'clock this afternoon to Christian A. Larson and Hilda J. Knudsen both of the town of Clinton. This is the largest number of licenses issued in any one day for a number of months.

FUNERAL HELD FOR AVIATOR JOHNSTONE; HEAVY WINDS TODAY

Last Sad Rites For Man Killed in Aeroplane Fall At Chicago Tuesday Held Today.—Winds Make Flights Dangerous Today.

Chicago, Aug. 17.—The funeral of St. Croix Johnstone, who was killed by a fall from his aeroplane last Tuesday was held today. A monoplane made in flowers appeared among the lavish floral tributes. The body will be cremated.

Indications were that the program this afternoon might be hampered by winds such as rendered the sport hazardous yesterday.

REAR ADMIRAL WAS RETIRED FOR AGE

Rear Admiral Seaton Schroeder, Conspicuous Figure in Navy, Reached Age Limit Today.

Washington, D. C., Aug. 17.—Rear Admiral Seaton Schroeder, a conspicuous figure in the navy, was placed on the retired list today on account of age. His naval career began in 1868, in which year he graduated from Annapolis and was assigned to duty with the Pacific fleet. During the ensuing thirty years he served on sea and land in six. His first command was the battleship Louisiana. During the memorable voyage of the Atlantic fleet around the world he was in command of the Virginia. His last active duty was president of the naval war college.

WOULD NATIONALIZE ALL ENGLISH LAND

New Member of Commons, Multi-millionaire, Will Start Campaign for Government Ownership of Land.

London, Aug. 17.—A multi-millionaire, new member of the House of Commons from North-west Ham, intends to make a campaign for the nationalization of all land his chief work in parliament.

For Social Reform. "The land question strikes," he says, "at the root of every measure of social reform. People have said that I am rich and even suggested that, if I were the radical I profess to be, I would give all my money away. But what would be the use? Nobody would benefit by it except the landlords. They collect everything.

Landlords Benefited. "If it were possible to give every workingman a salary of fifty shillings," twelve dollars a week, the landlords would benefit in increased rent, because the margin of the standard of living would be broader. If protection were adopted, the landlords would benefit most, because we should be more dependent on our own crops for support and the landlords would be able to get increased rent.

Government Should Buy. "I am a strong believer in the nationalization of the land, and shall use every means in my power in parliament to bring it about. After that, everything else will be easy. At present the land is being valued, and when the figures are published I shall propose that the state buy out the landlords. The sooner such a scheme is adopted the better. The country's land values are continually rising and every year increases the price that the government will have to pay.

Land Prices Rise. "Increases in land values are brought about by the community, not by the landlords. It is the labor of the people, with capital, which is making land more valuable. There is no fresh invention, no new commercial scheme, and I might say no scheme of social reform which does not send up the price of the land. If the state owned the land, it would be able to return to the community the value which the community had earned. This could be done on the lines with which recent legislation has made us familiar—old age pensions, workmen's insurance and labor exchanges, for instance—and by the granting of free postage, free railroads and so on."

Children Returned To Chicago Today. Twenty-four of the Little Ones Who Were Guests of the Summer Club of Household Economics Left Today.

After a two weeks' visit in the country around Janesville during which they enjoyed to the full the flowers and fresh air and good food furnished them, twenty-four of the twenty-five fresh air children who were brought out here by the Summer Club of Household Economics, returned to their homes in Chicago this morning.

The one little tot, the smallest and youngest of them all, remained in Janesville with Mrs. J. B. Day until she recovers from the effects of ear-ache for children younger and smaller than herself.

All of the children had a great time out of doors and will remember the trip as one of the events of their lives. The ladies who had them in charge can rest with pleasant thoughts of having sent back healthy, happy children, all as brown as berries, who will long remember the lovely time that the Janesville ladies gave them.

The Summer Club wishes to express publicly its appreciation of the kindness of the officials of the Milwaukee road toward the children and their attendants.

COMPENSATION ACT IS BOOSTED AGAIN BY THE COMMISSION

Chairman Crownhart and J. D. Beck Speak Before Racine Audience, Telling of Superior Qualities of New Law.

(Special to the Gazette.) Racine, Wis., Aug. 17.—"The workmen's compensation act accomplished, at one sweep, by way of labor legislation, than has been accomplished since the organization of the state," declared J. D. Beck of the Wisconsin Industrial commission, at a meeting of the officers and employees of the J. I. Case Flow works here last night. Addresses were made also by Chairman C. H. Crownhart and J. J. Young, chief safety inspector of the Illinois Steel Co. Mr. Crownhart's address contained a complete analysis of the workmen's compensation law, while Mr. Beck's dealt with the subject of factory inspection and the reduction of industrial accidents.

"Besides laying down the rule that every place of employment shall be safe and sanitary," continued Mr. Beck, "it provides a much more elastic and equitable method of bringing about safe and sanitary conditions than is possible under existing laws. Factory Laws Settled. "Another strong point in favor of legislation of this kind, should it work as its supporters maintain, is that it settles the question of the kind of factory legislation it attempts to cover once and for all. Employers will know what is required of them and will have no fear of what the next legislature will do. Manufacturers of machinery will see that their machines are properly guarded before they are placed upon the market, and architects will provide every safeguard for the health of employees, in plans for buildings."

"It took a catastrophe like the Newhall house fire in Milwaukee, when scores were burned to death, to demonstrate the need of a fireproof law," said Mr. Beck.

Situation Is Changed. "Labor legislation prior to 1907 in Wisconsin had been meted out piecemeal by the legislature without proper provision for its enforcement. With powerful obstacles in its way, the bureau of labor has not been able to keep pace with the times. But with the passage of the workmen's compensation act the whole situation is changed. Employers are made directly responsible for damages in case of accident, and the more accidents the greater their liabilities. The employers realize that it is up to them to prevent accidents as much as possible in the future, and they welcome any assistance. They know that it is cheaper to provide a ten dollar safety device than to pay a $3,000 award for damages. This in brief, is the situation which led to the introduction of the industrial commission bill in the legislature. This bill covers the whole field of employment except domestic service and certain agricultural pursuits."

Crownhart Spoke. Mr. Crownhart said that under the old common law only one out of every eight injured workmen recovered any compensation. Those who recovered large amounts were forced to divide their awards with attorneys and to pay heavy court costs besides waiting sometimes years for a settlement of their damage suits. This, he said, represented a tremendous loss to the individual workmen, but was secondary in importance to the tremendous economic waste to industry and society as a whole under the old system.

"Under the compensation law," he said, "the compensation begins at once in the form of weekly payments. These payments are not large, but they will tide over the injured man during the period of greatest necessity."

To Prevent Fraud. "Under the compensation act in foreign countries," he said, "there has been found a certain percentage of employees who indulge in malingering or simulation of injury. In other words, they will not go back to work as soon as they should, but pretend to be incapacitated and unable to perform their duties. This fault has been found to be the great stumbling block in all this class of legislation. Workmen themselves, individually and as represented by their unions, must help to weed out the frauds as the only way to preserve to themselves the benefits of the act. I call upon you all to stand by your employers and to see that there is a square deal for both sides."

Inspector Young's speech on safety devices and the prevention of accidents was accompanied by stereopticon views. He explained in detail how the big steel corporation had reduced by 66 per cent in two years the total time lost by employees on account of work accidents.

SCOUTS WILL HAVE A PART IN RACE MEET

ARE TO ACT AS PATROLS AT THE MOTORCYCLE RACES TO BE HELD NEXT SATURDAY.

NEW TROOP PLANNED

Body For Boys Too Young To Be Members of the Regular Scout Body is Being Considered By Commissioners.

Matters in Scout circles are moving rapidly and well, and the work of the boys is becoming more and more noticeable throughout the city. Public interest and attention is being attracted to them quite frequently and at last they are to be given a chance to show how capable they are and how well they have profited by their training.

Work in Public.
 Next Saturday afternoon, when the motorcycle races start at the Fair Grounds park, the fence and the track especially will be patrolled by the Scouts whose duty it will be to prevent accidents to spectators. At each gate there will be stationed two or three boys to give people any information which they may desire, and some of the smaller Scouts will be in the grandstand to act as ushers and to pass the programs. All of the troops will be out in uniform and some sixty or more Scouts will be on duty.

On Labor Day, too, at the celebration given by the Carpenters' and Joiners' Union, the scouts will be detailed to act as ushers and to assist in handling the crowd. It is also quite probable that they will take part in the exercises and give an exhibition drill on that occasion. They will go into camp at the Fair Grounds in the morning on Labor Day, and after the day is over will stay all night in their camp.

New Equipment Arrived.
 With the arrival a few days ago of a shipment of Scout Shirts from Chicago, the equipment of the local troops is practically complete. These shirts are of hard wood, four and one-half foot long, and made with a notch at the upper end for carrying a flag, which may also be used for wigwag signaling. It is the plan of the scouts here to paint their shirts with the individual colors of their troops so that a scout may be recognized by the color of his shirt.

A number of the boys have become quite proficient in the art of wigwag signaling, and in their camp tonight will hear a talk on the use of this system, and also the semaphore signaling system, by a gentleman living in the second ward, who is versed in their use.

At the same time that the shirts were shipped some two dozen Boy Scout Handbooks were sent, which the boys had ordered some time ago. This book gives various necessary things for scouts to know and also gives instruction in the special lines from which a scout may secure special degrees and badges. Of course, these badges are only given after a boy has become a scout of the first class; but they may begin their work for them now. The manual gives, too, instruction for stove drill and all of the various evolutions of a scout troop and an all around handy book.

Troop For Younger Boys.
 A new idea which has just suggested itself to the scout committee, and which they are giving careful consideration, is the organizing of a body somewhat similar to the scouts. In Janesville there are a great many youngsters between the ages of ten and twelve who are too young to enter the Scouts because of the age limit of twelve, but who are still of the same sort of work. It is the plan of the commissioners to organize these younger boys, who could not stand the harder work of the regular troops into a similar body with special work for them. Then as they grow old enough they will be taken into the regular scout troop. This would be a fine thing for the little chaps who cannot enter the regular troop.

Work During School.
 Now that the school year is about to begin, the scout masters have decided that a scout's standing in school and his work in both studies and athletics would count toward his promotion credits. The boys will be busy out of school hours with new things, and often there will be lectures on various subjects of value to them, such as History, American literature, and very likely Dr. Buckmaster's talks on First Aid to the Injured will be continued throughout the winter. The chief work of the scout movement is to keep the boys out of mischief and to keep them useful; and this is a very profitable way of doing it. The effect of the work is already noticeable on a great many of the boys in Janesville, who have recently joined a troop.

ELECTRICAL STORM BREAKS UP PICNIC; BUILDINGS STRUCK

Severe Rain and Electrical Disturbance Interfered With Albion Picnic Yesterday Afternoon—Damage by Lightning.

(SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.)

Edgerton, Aug. 17.—The annual harvest picnic held yesterday on Albion Prairie, although largely attended, was not a success, the heavy rain and electrical storm in the early part of the afternoon early interfering with the day's program that was in store for the people that gathered to participate in the annual event. A sumo of baseball was played in the forenoon between a team made up of members of the Edgerton concert band and a team made up of young men from the country. After the picnic dinner, another game was scheduled but could not be finished on account of the storm. Addresses were made by a number of local speakers and while the occasion was thoroughly enjoyed, yet it would have been a much greater success had not the storm interfered.

Buildings Struck.
 During the electrical storm yesterday afternoon the barn of Fred Zahn on East Fulton street was struck by lightning. Scarcely no damage was done to the barn, the bolt following a wire clothes line to the house where it disappeared. The fire department was called out but luckily there were no flames noticeable upon their arrival at the scene.

The tobacco shed on Mrs. Wallace Brown's farm, three miles north of the city, was struck by lightning during the electrical storm yesterday afternoon. The damage was slight.

Social and Personal.
 Frank Pringle and James Keller, head members of the department store, are in Chicago on business for a few days.

Miss Gladys Brown of Hebron, Jefferson county, came yesterday on a visit to her father, D. D. Brown, for several weeks.

Mrs. William Hutson left yesterday for Rockburg where she will visit her mother and brother the remainder of the week.

Misses Phyllis and Barbara Thompson, after spending the past two months with Mr. and Mrs. Hans Nelson, departed last night for their home in Milwaukee.

William Schrab returned last night from Blunt, S. D., where he has been for the past three months looking after his real estate interests there.

Ex-Governor Alva Adams and wife of Pueblo, Colo., and Mrs. C. V. Burden of Madison arrived here this morning to spend the day as guests of Father and Mrs. F. M. Conn.

A pleasant social party was given last night at the residence of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Blesman, the occasion being in the nature of a surprise on Prof. and Mrs. Oberdieck, who are here from Horton for a week's visit with their time neighbors and friends. There was a large attendance and a general good time. The event closed with the serving of dainty refreshments and music.

TEACHING FORCE HAS NUMEROUS CHANGES

A Number of Vacancies Due To Resignations Have Had To Be Filled By Supt. Buell For Next Year.

Janesville's teaching force for the coming school year, will have a number of changes in its ranks, due to the resignation of a number of last year's teachers. There will be three teachers gone from the high school and nine from the grade schools.

Mr. Lahr, who formerly taught the city and county in the high school, has resigned to accept the office of principal of the high school at Lehi, Wis. He will be succeeded here by E. L. Roethe of Edgerton. Mr. Roethe, who coached the athletes of the high school and was instructor in history, will be succeeded by Donald McMurray of DeKalb, Ill., having decided to go into business activities. The other change in the high school force will be the resignation of William Vlymon, instructor in Latin and other branches, to accept a position with the Janesville Rural Wire Works. His sister, Miss Helen Vlymon, who taught mathematics last year, will assume his duties. Mr. Buell has secured Miss Dwyer of Baraboo, to teach mathematics.

The greatest number of changes will take place in the graded schools, where a number of vacancies have been made by the resignation of various teachers. At the Garfield school, Miss Hayes has resigned to study music; and Miss Sayles has given up her position in eighth grade. Miss Klinger of the Adams school, will take a year's rest, and Miss Johnson will go to another city to teach. Miss Cunningham and Miss Hall, also of the Adams school, will go to other positions. In the Grant school only one teacher has resigned, Miss Juliette, who has accepted a position in another city. At the Jefferson school, Miss Wilson and Miss Woodruff have both resigned, the one to leave for the Pacific coast soon, and the other to accept another position. Miss Shier of the Washington school has also resigned and will give up teaching.

With such a large number of positions to fill, Supt. Buell has found his time well occupied, but has secured the following teachers to fill the vacancies made by resignations. Except for Miss Emma Tom of Milwaukee, all the new teachers will be from Janesville. They are Misses Alice and Mary Roberts, May Henderson, Teresa Huettnerdorf, Phoebe McManis, Carrie Inman, and Anna Dawson.

LINK AND PIN. TWO PASSENGERS ARE INJURED IN WRECK NEAR HARTLAND, ILL.

Chicago & Northwestern.

Broken Rail Ditched Smoker and Three Coaches—Two Slightly Injured in What Might Have Been Serious Wreck.

Two passengers were slightly injured when the smoker and three coaches of train 516 which leaves here at 7:20 p. m. toppled over last night a short distance below Hartland, Ill. A broken rail was the cause of the wreck.

The train was going at a very slow rate of speed at the sharp curve beyond Hartland station as it was the intention of the conductor to stop near the signal station a short distance ahead. Had this not been the case it is very likely that a very serious wreck would have resulted.

The engine and baggage car passed over the broken rail, but the rest of the coaches left the track and tipped over on their side. The passengers were much excited and it was feared at first that several were seriously injured, but it was learned later, after the excitement had subsided that only two were injured and these only very slightly.

It is considered rather remarkable that so little damage was done to the train and that the passengers escaped so fortunately. Traffic was blocked on the line for only a very short time as the train was soon repaired and the derailed coaches put in place and sent on their way very quickly.

CAR MEN BUSY CHANGING CARS AS REQUIRED BY LAW

Four new men have been added to the force in the car repair department and a few more will be taken on in the near future in order to handle the increased work incident to the changing of the cars to conform to the style required by the Interstate Railway Commission. According to the requirements of the commission, ladders must be placed on the end and on the outside of each box car, where now there are none of such cars that have the ladders on the outside. These ladders must be in the shape of being fastened with lag screws and the running boards on the top of the cars, which are now nailed must be bolted on in the same manner.

According to the estimates made by officials of the various roads these changes will involve an expense of between sixteen and twenty dollars on each car. The railroad companies are given five years in which to have all the cars changed to conform to the requirements laid down by the Interstate Railway commission. When cars of other companies are accepted in exchange the holder responsible if they should not be up to the standard.

The additional work brought on by making these changes will keep the car repair force in the South Janesville yards very busy and Foreman Whitehead thinks that a larger force will have to be enlisted to attend to this and the regular repairing.

The four men who were added to the force today are: Lewis Mahneks, Thomas Whalen, Bruno Huggs and William McCloskey.

GOVERNMENT INSPECTOR PLEASED AT LOCAL YARDS

Government Inspector Strickland accompanied by C. H. Osborn, assistant superintendent of the car department, and Inspector LaCourt of the St. Paul system visited the local yards and shop yesterday afternoon and expressed satisfaction with the condition of affairs there. These officials are paying special attention to the changes being made in the construction and changing of cars required by the Railway Commission and seemed well pleased with the manner in which the local employees are conducting the work.

Engine Inspector Daniel Sullivan has resigned his position at the shops.

Four firemen of the Wisconsin division are now on duty on the northern division at the gravel pit, on account of the failure of men in that division falling to report as they were assigned.

A special train of six coaches passed through here from Chicago this morning, enroute to Canada. All the coaches were filled with men, who are to be employed as farm hands in the northern country.

Stationary Engineer A. Lucht is off duty today and is being relieved by Harry Look.

Carmath Strumpe went to Ft. Atkinson yesterday to attend to repairs on cars at that place.

Fireman Walters is relieving Day on train 391.

Charles Connors, yard clerk at South Janesville, has started on his vacation of a few weeks, after he will spend in northern Michigan.

Engineer Garland and Fireman Dwyer reported for duty this morning and Cole and Siebert who were relieving them went on the board.

ARRANGEMENTS FOR SPECIAL TRAIN TO THE STATE FAIR

Gazette is Confering With Northwestern Railroad Authorities on the Matter.

So that residents of Rock county can have one full day at the state fair this year, The Gazette is seeking to make arrangements with the Northwestern railroad for a special train to be run to the State Fair Park on September 15th. The train if secured will leave Janesville at seven twenty-five and run direct to West Allis, reaching there about ten in the morning. The train will leave West Allis for Janesville at 7:30, arriving in Janesville before ten. It would give the persons availing themselves of the train, a full day at the fair on what is known as State Day when the best races and best attractions are to be seen.

The Northwestern line and the Milwaukee road yesterday granted the request of the State Board of Agriculture for a reduced rate from all points in Wisconsin during the State Fair week. It is expected that the Soo line will do likewise in a few days.

F. A. Cannon of the Citizens Trust and Savings bank, as chairman of the State Fair transportation committee received notice from F. A. Miller general passenger agent of the Milwaukee road, announcing the concession and stating that the fare for the round trip from all points in Wisconsin will be one and one half the regular or 3c a mile. This concession is equal to the lowest rate ever granted by the railroads to the State Fair board and is on a par with the one fair for the round trip that used to be granted when the regular rate was 3c a mile.

The minimum rate on excursion tickets, however, will be limited to $1.00 in other words the rate only applies to points beyond the zone where $1.00 will buy a one way ticket. General Passenger Agent Miller embodies in his notification to the State Fair board that the sale of excursion tickets will start Tuesday, Sept. 12th, and continue until Saturday, Sept. 16th, with a time limit for returning set for Monday, Sept. 18.

This means a tremendous crowd from Northern Wisconsin according to William MacLaren, who has been negotiating with the Northern Wisconsin members of the board. A. W. Peltin of Wausau, George P. Conings of Eau Claire and Ira M. J. Chrysl of Hudson, to work up sentiment in favor of running excursion trains from the northern points.

Arrangements have already been made for special trains from Marshfield and Wausau on the Northwestern line and Mr. Peltin writes that there would have been enough tickets sold at Wausau depot to guarantee a special train, but in view of the railroads granting the one and one half rate, he is now confident that a second special can be arranged for both special trains run in addition to the regular train service. The first special train will run Wednesday, Sept. 13th, and the second from Wausau will leave with the Wausau military company and the Cono's Fourth Regiment band on Friday morning. With the military company it is expected that there will be at least 1,000 state fair visitors.

A stiff breeze was blowing off the lake at the time and although Ward had tried to induce Curtiss to let him make the flight earlier in the day, the experienced aviator refused his request until six o'clock in the afternoon. Ward made a successful trip in every way, soaring above the lake front, sky-scrapers and over an immense crowd which gathered to witness the spectacle.

Enclosed Steel Ensilage Carriers For Filling Silos

For several years we have been experimenting with a carrier that would do away with some of the objections of the old style carrier, and also have some of the advantages of the pneumatic elevator. In the Enclosed Steel Carrier we have accomplished this. It is built of galvanized sheet steel and is practically indestructible. It can be operated in nearly a perpendicular position. All the cut feed passes up inside and in consequence cannot be blown out of the carrier. All the buckets are carried on a single heavy chain belt and there is no side strain, and the trouble of one chain stretching more than the other that has always caused so many vexatious delays in the old style carrier is entirely done away with. The carrier buckets all returning on the top of the carrier does away with the necessity of any return supports. This in conjunction with the fact that the carrier can be set nearly perpendicular allows the buckets coming down on the outside to nearly balance the ones going up in the inside so that only the weight of the cut ensilage has to be lifted. This makes the carrier very light running. It is driven direct from the knife head shaft by means of leather belting. The tightener pulley is controlled by a spring and in the event of the carrier getting caught in any way the belt will slip or the operator can easily and quickly release the tightener and stop the carrier before any damage is done.

The hopper at the base of the carrier is so arranged that all the ensilage drops directly into the carrier doing away entirely with the unsightly pile of ensilage usually found at the base of carriers.

We can furnish an attachment for the top of the carrier to deliver at an angle. This is not necessary however, when the carrier is placed in a direct line with the window of the silo. Can be furnished in any desired length.

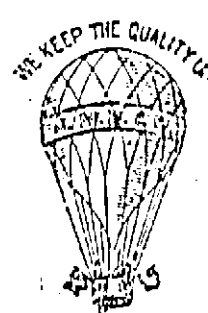

For prices and other details apply.

that will soon be one of the foremost in women's minds is the Wearing Apparel Department. Janesville's most important stock of Suits, Coats, Wool Dresses and Furs is fast being completed. The number of new things already shown would take up all the room that average stores devote to Ready-to-Wear Garments. By the middle of next week we will have ready several thousand dollars worth more of the correct new things. No store hereabouts can hope to make a showing equal to the Big Store's. The very best they can do is to make an attempt. WHY? BECAUSE THEY DO NOT MAKE THE INVESTMENT. Drop in and look around. We enjoy showing the goods.

MANY OLD SOLDIERS HERE FOR REUNION OF THE THIRTEENTH

BUSINESS TRANSACTED

Captain Piny Norcross Re-elected President of Association at Meeting This Morning at East Side Hall.

Captain Piny Norcross of this city and W. P. Clarke of Milton were elected by acclamation to succeed themselves as president and secretary-treasurer of the Thirteenth Wisconsin Volunteer Regiment association, at the business meeting of the association held in the rooms at East Side Odd Fellows' hall this morning. Other matters of business were taken up at the morning's session, including the reports of the officers and other matters of interest to the old soldiers who are assembled here.

The meeting was called to order at half past nine o'clock and the business was taken up in an informal manner, much good spirit and fun entering into the work to be done. At noon a dinner was served to the veterans and their wives who are here for the convention in the hall by the ladies of the Woman's Relief Corps.

Notes of the Reunion.

The youngest member of the regiment attending the reunion is T. B. Lathrop of Ohio, a member of Co. I, who is sixty-five years of age. The oldest veteran here is B. P. Le Valley of Company C, who has reached his eighty-fourth milestone.

Secretary-Treasurer W. P. Clarke of Milton has held his present position for the past forty-five years and ten years ago was elected to the position for life. The formality of reelecting him each succeeding year, however, is carried through. Captain Norcross, president of the association, finds general favor among the old soldiers and when the call for nominations was made this morning, his name was the only one suggested for the position.

In Company I are three brothers, George, John and Joe Garbutt. Enlisting at the same time, they served with the regiment until it was mustered out, and all three are here for the reunion.

Officers Elected,
At the business meeting held by the veterans of the 13th regiment at the Odd Fellows' hall at 9:30 this morning the old officers, Capt. Piny Norcross, president and W. P. Clarke, secretary-treasurer, were unanimously elected to succeed themselves.

This meeting was the best that the veterans' organization had in ten years and much enthusiasm shown by the large crowd in attendance. Many stirring speeches were made and the meeting throughout was more proof of the fact that the men of sixty-one are still young in spirit if not in years and that they can feel as none but an old soldier fully appreciates that feeling of true friendship which was given him the days when the country was in the throes of civil strife.

Campfire Last Night.
At the campfire last evening the same spirit was revealed and it did the heart good to listen to the cordial greetings and exchange of reminiscences between those men who fought together on many battle fields and first time at this their fifteenth annual reunion. The renewing of old acquaintances and the swapping of tales of those war days took up the time after the address given by Superintendent Inell and others and the gathering enjoyed a happy social time together until late into the night.

Here Next Year.
By a vote at the meeting this morning it was decided to hold their next reunion a year hence at the same place and to devote two days to the event as was done this year. This was done in order to afford the members who live at some distance from Janesville to have a chance to have a visit with their comrades as they could not do to any advantage if they had only one day as formerly to come here, attend the meeting and the return to their homes.

TO BE TRIED FOR PICKING POCKETS OF DRUNKEN MAN

Thomas Day, Cobbler, Arraigned in Court Today Charged With Stealing Fifty Cents and Watch From E. H. Vanderbilt of Juda.

Thomas Day, a cobbler, was brought into municipal court this morning charged with the theft of fifty cents in money, a silver watch valued at $8 and a chain valued at $4.50 from the person of E. H. Vanderbilt of Juda. Day admitted the theft of the fifty cents from Vanderbilt, but denied that he had stolen the watch. The preliminary examination was waived by the prisoner and his trial was set for next Thursday, August 21. Day was held at five hundred dollars, which the prisoner was unable to furnish.

Day was arrested yesterday by Officer Peter Champion, who went in search of the man. Vanderbilt was passing through the city yesterday on his way from Juda to Delavan to consult a physician but stopped off long enough to take several drinks too many. He was enticed away from a hotel bar, it is alleged, by Day who took the man to the court house park. Vanderbilt, being under the influence of the liquor he had drunk, fell asleep and while he lay there, Day, it is alleged, went through his pockets. Don Godfrey, an employee of the Harlow Canopy company, was passing through the park yesterday morning and seeing the two men together suspected that something was wrong and watched Day. After Day had gone through the man's pockets, he started off down the hill onto South Main street toward the business district. Godfrey followed Day for a short distance and then went to the police station where he informed the officers of the occurrence and gave them a description of the man who had committed the robbery. The patrol wagon was sent to bring Vanderbilt to the lockup and Officer Champion went in search of Day.

LOCAL UNION PLANS GREAT LABOR DAY

Labor Day this year, if the Carpenters and Joiners' Union has anything to say about it, will be a big day in Janesville. They are going to make things move by one of the biggest days ever seen in the city, and they plan to have something doing all the time.

This celebration, which will be the fifth annual one given by the Union, although the first of such dimensions, will be held at the Fair Grounds and will be in progress all the day. The big events of the day will be the races, which will be of two kinds, horse and motorcycle.

The horses, as at present planned, will race in two classes with prizes for each class. Mayor Nichols has consented to take charge of these contests, and a number of local horses will compete, which will add to the interest. The entries are not yet closed, but already a number of people have signified their intention of entering horses.

The other races will be motorcycle contests. There will be three of these, two for private and the second a 61 class, and the free-wheel three mile specialty race. Harry McManis is managing these contests and has already secured ten or twelve entries. Included in the day's program, to be run between the horse races and motorcycle races and other contests, will be foot races, bicycle races and probably a four event track meet between athletes from the Y. M. C. A. and some of the High school athletes.

It is also the plan of the committee to have a ball game in the afternoon, and efforts are being made to arrange a game between the Parker Pen team and a picked team from the Commercial League. There has been a slight hitch in the proceedings, due to certain demands of the Pen players, but if these difficulties cannot be removed, a game will be secured between two other teams from the League.

Efforts have been made, also, to secure the services of the Bower City band for the day. As yet nothing definite has been agreed upon in these negotiations due to the fact the Bower City band may not have the necessary time, but the committee is hopeful that they can put the musical arrangements through in this way.

All these things will happen in the day-time, but darkness will not end the day's festivities by any means, for in the evening a dance will be held in Assembly hall, with Knott and Hatch's orchestra furnishing the music. This will be a very excellent ending for such a day as the Union plans for Janesville.

The Carpenters and Joiners mean to make this a big day in the minds of Janesville, and the celebration has been widely advertised. There should be a large out-of-town attendance, and joy will be unconfined. As soon as the committee has definitely completed their program it will be published and everyone will know what to expect.

Park Association Would Like to Have It Packed Down by Automobiles.

These heavy rains have been just the thing needed to make the two tracks at the Park Association grounds good. Now sunshine is needed to dry them out and then genuine racing can begin. John C. Nichols, President of the association asks auto owners to try out the tracks with their cars, taking pains not to run in ruts at the turns and on the straightaways. If every auto owner in the city would run his car around both tracks tomorrow, it would pack the soil down in most excellent shape. If there was no more rain in the meantime. The use of autos in getting race tracks in shape is a new innovation and has been worked most successfully in many localities. A little later in the season the association plans to have regular matinee races as well as several days of good harness racing.

Thought for Today

MRS. ROBERT M. LAFOLLETTE

PLANNING THE MEALS.

A NEW YORK friend tells me this sad, true story. It is of a man and his wife, neither of whom are well. Their breakfasts and luncheons, more often than not, are brought to them on trays. But they have servants, and the lady of the house has old-fashioned ideas about looking after her household, no matter how many servants. She believes also that the dinner should be a formal, dignified meal, suited to their station in life. And this is where the tragedy comes in. She wears herself out planning what they shall have for dinner.

When it comes to this ever-recurring important subject of planning the meals, none of us are any too sure of our wisdom. I know I am not. Eating should be a recreation as well as a necessity. But we know that when both these requirements are met, there is still great waste in the meals we plan.

The science of nutrition has not reached the point where it offers us perfect standards of what to eat, even if we would follow them. Fortunately domestic science and training are having greater and growing influence on the solution of the practical problem of the daily meals.

Experience has shown that large, strong, enduring races of men are raised on simple diet, the Scotch on oatmeal, the Irish on potatoes, the colored folk on corn cake.

We need not go back to this rigid diet which necessity compels. A certain freedom in the choice of foods adds to human happiness, but simple joys are most lasting and sweet. Simplicity should be our first guide in planning the daily meals. We cannot reform altogether. We have some regard to conventional standards, but we can use our intelligence, and direct our effort and influence toward making our table well balanced and nourishing, and against complexity and elaborate schemes that cause needless work—and indigestion.

The Evening Chit-Chat

By RUTH CAMERON.

"NO MAN, sir, is obliged to do as much as he can. A man should have part of his life to himself."—Dr. Johnson.

"I know why I feel so wretchedly," I heard a woman say the other day. "It isn't the hot weather at all. It's just because I've been packing my days again. The doctor told me that if I didn't get over that habit I'd be in a sanitarium in six months, and I did reform for a while, but I guess I'm at it again."

Are you one of those unfortunate people who have the habit of packing their days?

You know what I mean, of course—planning every hour, arranging for every moment, packing every instant full of plans.

I don't mean wholly plans for work. They may be plans for social obligations or for pleasures. It isn't the character of what you do that makes the packed day so exhausting. It's the feeling that it is packed.

It's the sense of being obliged to do this and that and to get it done at such and such a time.

It's the constant terror that one engagement will overlap another and throw the whole day out.

It's the breathless hurrying to overtake one's plans if one falls behind.

If you live busily and serenely, taking each moment as it comes and not trying to live an exacting schedule you will probably accomplish twice as much as you will by clanking yourself frantically through a packed day, and not be half so tired at the end.

Life is pitifully short and to those of us who have very many interests it is often a temptation to plan for each "shining hour" its duty or its pleasure and leave no loopholes for just living.

But life was not meant to be used that way, as most of us learn who try it.

The head of one of the biggest institutions of its kind in this country was once rebuking a clerk whom he considered rather too strenuous.

"Take an afternoon off now and then and just be around," he advised kindly. "You'll be worth more to both yourself and me in the end."

The clerk, being something of a prig, reminded his employer that he had been brought up to observe—

"How doth the little busy bee improve each shining hour?"

"Yes, that's all right for the busy bee," retorted the big man, "but don't you know, my friend, the blooming bug doesn't live but one year?"

Live by a system, if you like. I have no doubt those who do accomplish most, but don't let it be a system that packs every hour and accounts for every minute and makes a slave of you.

Remember the system is for you, not you for the system.

IT DOES PAY.

MOTHER'S CORNER

By JULIA CHANDLER.

"All that I am, or ever hope to be, I owe to my Mother."

—Abraham Lincoln.

THE MOTHER-OF-FIVE was hemming Swiss curtains. "For the girls?" asked little Mrs. Wynn, her friend from across the way.

"No; for the boys," answered the Mother-of-Five.

"Why," said Mrs. Wynn, "what does a boy want with curtains?"

"They don't care anything about their room. Now my Jack is rarely in his room except to sleep. It is different with a girl, of course. She appreciates dainty things. I'll tell you, my girls would raise a ruckus if I put any old thing in their room as I do in Jack's. He's awful good about it. Never says a word. I brought down a broken chair from the attic for him only this morning. I did think at one time I would put a rug in Jack's room, but his feet are always muddy. I'll tell you it doesn't pay to put anything nice in a boy's room."

The tender-hearted Mother-of-Five made no comment, but her lips quivered suspiciously and the little Wynn mother saw.

"Why," she said, "what's the matter?"

"May I really tell you?" questioned The-Mother-of-Five.

"Of course," said the Wynn mother.

"Haven't you been worrying about Jack?" asked Mrs. Wynn earnestly. "Haven't you been wishing that he did not play with Fred Tyler and that Bohem boy?"

Haven't you wished that he took as much interest in his home as your girls do? Well, I can tell you the reason for these things!"

"Go on," said the Wynn mother with all the voice she had left. "Go on, please!"

"Yes," said The-Mother-of-Five, "even if you never forgive me, I am going to tell you the truth!"

"Jack does care about his room. It is a source of shame to him. The reason that he is rarely in it except to sleep, as you say, is because it is neither attractive to him nor to his friends. Can you tell me any reason why a boy of fourteen should wish to stay in a room cluttered up with a lot of rubbish fit only for a lumber room? If your girls have more refined tastes than your boy it is because you have cultivated refinement in them to the shameful neglect of your boy. You tell me it doesn't pay to put anything nice into a boy's room. Does it pay better to have him seek a cheerful place in which he may talk to his friends outside of his home?"

O, The-Mother-of-Five was deeply in earnest, for two of her five are boys, and, besides, who has seen much of Jack Wynn and her heart has been troubled about his recent tendency toward the streets, where he has picked up undesirable companions.

"Will you go up with me to hang the curtains?" she asked the mother of Jack Wynn finally.

The Wills boys have a large sunny room. There is no broken down furniture in it. It is furnished with good, plain, strong furniture, and about the walls hang pictures, simply framed, but expressive of each boy's taste. Around the wall runs a moulding, such as one has in a dining room for plates.

"For their bats, balls, gloves, etc.," explained The-Mother-of-Five to the Wynn mother.

Then she hung the fresh curtains, draping them back so that they did not obscure the view from the big window.

Just then a group of boys burst into the room—the Wills boys, some half a dozen others, and—Jack Wynn.

"I'll tell you, fellows," said Ben Wills, his face glowing with enthusiasm, "this is a place where a fellow can hang his friends and not be ashamed!"

The words were not meant for either the Wynn mother or the Wynn boy, but they cut deeply into the consciousness of both. Jack was looking at his mother out of the frank, fearless eyes of youth, the hurt for a very long time clouding their blue depths.

As for the Wynn mother—well, she stole silently away!

The Kitchen Cabinet

ARE not all equals in intellect, in learning and so forth, but we are all equals in the power to be good and honorable and generous.

—Senator Doolittle.

SUMMER DESSERTS.

During the warm weather months we like food that is both attractive, refreshing and satisfying. Cold desserts of all kinds are popular at this season.

A very pretty and tasty dessert was discovered one day when a coffee custard had been carelessly left too long over the heat and curdled slightly. The custard was at once removed to a cool dish and whipped with the egg beater until smooth. Of course, it was too thin to serve as planned, so a few slices of banana were placed in the bottom of some sherbet cups and the custard poured over them, then three overlapping slices were arranged on top. The combination of coffee and banana flavor was a surprise.

One could use any bits of fruit at hand, as strawberries, pineapple or any fruit that is liked.

Banana Cantaloupe.—Boil two table spoonfuls of granulated gelatine in one-fourth of a cup of cold water; dissolve in one cup of hot cream. Add a cup of sugar, three egg whites well beaten, six mashed bananas and a fourth of a cup of lemon juice. Chill and, as it begins to thicken, fold in the whip from a pint of cream. Line a mold with lady fingers, add the cream mixture, chill and serve. Garnish with cherries.

Rice and Coconut Custard.—Put half a cup of well-washed rice into a double boiler with three pints of milk. Let it cook until very soft, then add salt to cook. Beat together five eggs, leaving out the whites of two; add one cupful of sugar and one of grated coconut. Stir in the cold rice mixture and bake in the oven to a soft custard. Make a meringue of the two whites and six tablespoonfuls of powdered sugar; pile on top of the pudding and set back in the oven to brown delicately.

Blenheim Pudding.—Make a custard of one egg, a tablespoonful of sugar and a cup of milk. Butter a pudding dish and put in a layer of jam; over this put slices of buttered bread and some raisins. Pour over the custard and bake until the custard is of a creamy consistency.

Feature of the Season That Has an Attractiveness Really Unusual.

In the shops there are displayed suits and dresses of linen that are decidedly attractive in design and ornamentation. There are some features that are dominant on many of the distinctive models. One means of trimming is new and effective. It is silk or satin.

It is used as girdles on many little one-piece frocks. Skirts, buttoned and of considerable width, are worked at the sides of the front. Through these the silk/satin can be passed and conveniently removed before washing.

Many of these silk girdles have ends that hang halfway down the skirt. These may be at the side, the front or the back.

Rosettes of silk are used on many linen frocks. They are easily removed and give a very easy trimming for a little dress of plain-colored linen.

Buttons of black silk or satin are effective little ways of trimming a dress of linen. It is a matter of a few minutes to remove them or to replace them. They are undeniably worth the trouble.

The extra sailor collars are quite evident on imported frocks of linen, and can be incorporated with the blouse if the color of the suit or dress be of the unobtrusive kind.

These square collars are of foulard, of black silk or satin, and of colored silk deeper in shade than the material of which the dress is made. They are frequently trimmed with narrow collars of fine linen or lace upon them and sustaining the line at the neck.

Cuffs of silk or satin are the natural continuation of the collar idea. They, too, need not be alone in their glory.

As for the simple little bows and sailor knots of silk, they are used with much effect and convincing beauty on many linen frocks and suits.

The introduction of silk on linen is an important one this season. Do not neglect the idea, for it contributes much to the attractiveness of a gown.

Useless Opposition.

The surest way to prevail on a young couple to get married is to oppose them. Tell them you "would rather see them in their graves," and twelve months after their baby will pass you twice a day in a willow wagon.—Exchange.

The Candid Girl

Tells the Value of a Dearest Friend.

OUR dearest friend," said the Candid Girl meditatively, "could be of tremendous service to us, if she would be perfectly frank and tell us things we really need to know. She knows us better than any one else outside of our family. And though our family could tell the same things, somehow or other, we fail to take them in the proper spirit from relations."

"Instead of telling us our new hat is wondrously becoming, our dearest friend could say quite frankly that we looked a freak in it, that pink made us the color of a yellow turnip, and that we ought to realize that we couldn't wear the same kind of hat at thirty-five that we did at sixteen."

"Ihuh!" said Big Brother. "She wouldn't be your dearest friend long, if she told you anything like that. You'd be pulling hair in five minutes."

"If she was a real friend," said the Candid Girl sweetly, "she could tell you that, and you'd be glad for an honest opinion. One gets so few honest opinions nowadays."

"Then she could also tell you," went on the Candid Girl thoughtfully, "that she heard that Jack drank terribly, and that she really thought you ought to consider all that that meant before you let your affections get tangled in that direction."

"A lot of good that would do," scoffed Big Brother. "You'd immediately think it was your appointed destiny to reform him."

"And she might tell you," went on the Candid Girl, ignoring Big Brother, "that you had a most unpleasant habit of fussing, and that if you didn't correct it, you'd lose all your friends, because they were getting tired of it and wouldn't put up with it any longer."

"When it comes to bad habits or faults of character, your dearest friend could certainly put you wise, and it is in the part of a friend to do it. For one may have some unpleasant mannerisms of which she is entirely unconscious. People who are not real friends would feel a delicacy about telling you, and some how or other, you do discredit what the family tell you about these things. But your dearest friend, if she tells you in a way the dearest friend should, could put it before you so that you would be only too glad to know it, and you would immediately go about correcting it."

"That sounds too good for this earth," said Big Brother. "It might come to pass in the millennium; but if you think any two girls would bill and coo in that fashion, you don't know the feminine nature, that's all," he concluded oracularly.

"Well, I happen to know two girls who do bill and coo in that fashion, as you call it. They think no much of each other, that each wants the other to be perfect; and so any little point they can give each other, they do, about dressing, or the influence of other friends, or traits of character that need correcting, or anything of the kind. I tell you, it is wonderful to have a friend like that, one whom you know is perfectly sincere, and really has your best interests at heart."

"David and Jonathan in hobble skirts, eh?" said Big Brother. "You always were an optimist, Sis, so hang on to your faith in human nature. But I confess I'd be suspicious of a girl who professed all this. I'd be looking for the claws somewhere."

"Women are developing," said the Candid Girl sweetly. "There are not nearly so many of the catty kind as there used to be. There are plenty of girls with big, fine natures nowadays, and when you have one of them for a friend, you have a treasure."

Big Brother sneered on in silence and refused to be convinced. But the Candid Girl bided her time, for though he was at an age when he felt he was an expert on women, she knew that when her dearest friend arrived on her promised visit, he would quickly change his mind.

NOVEL COIFFURE DECORATION.

The French designers are always devising new decorations for the coiffure, and this year they have been unusually original, and have exploited some charming effects, while others have been too novel to court admiration. The decoration for evening wear shown in the sketch is one of the newest ideas, and consists of a gold band and slim upright plume matching the gown in tint.

Thunderstorm Observatory.

It is announced that a thunderstorm observatory has been established in Spain in which atmospheric discharges, both local and distant, are detected graphically and acoustically. A wireless telegraph instrument is used for this purpose, because each lightning discharge is accompanied by electro-magnetic waves similar to those used in wireless telegraphy.

SIMPLE DIET FOR BEAUTY.

Beauty is more than skin deep; it is in the blood—quality of flesh and muscle and bone, and deeper than these, in the thought that builds the body from material, food. "The question of beauty," says Emerson, "takes us out of surfaces, to thinking of the foundations of things."

Whatever may be the true standard of beauty, it is not superficial polish. The reality of beauty is its soul, whose outward expression we see in the body.

My body is not I, but the expression of me. I am my mind. My body is mine; and as I build my body according to the model in my mind, I can build a different body by changing the model and the material. The Greeks understood this fully. Their heroes were their models of valor, their heroines, of grace; and one word defines their habit in eating, Spartan simplicity.

VALUABLE PROPERTY EXEMPT FROM TAXES; NEWS OF NEW YORK

Real Estate of Immense Value in Metropolitan Area—Wall Street Faces Shortage of Money—Increased Sales Reported This Summer.

New York, Aug. 17.—That there is in this city real estate exempt from taxation whose value is fifty per cent. of the total value of the city, or the total amount appropriated by Congress for the running of the country, is the astonishing fact just indicated by the report of the President of the Department of Taxes and Assessments. The exact value of the land from which Father Killeckerbocker receives no income, much as he would like to, is given out at $1,546,268.75 or more than equal to the country's corn crop. The largest single item in this enormous figure is contributed by Central Park. As a matter of fact the value is probably much higher, and could be sold it might well bring at least $400,000,000. For many years suggestions have been made with more or less frequency looking to the sale of this property, and it is likely that the report of the Department of Taxes and Assessments will renew the discussion of this matter, little though it may be. Some of the larger items which contribute to the billion and a half total are the city hall and court houses, together with the real estate which is figured at $2,000,000, while the new public library with its adjacent grounds is valued at $2,000,000. A figure calculated to make even Mr. Carnegie a bit jealous. Church property also takes a prominent place, that of Trinity church being valued at $17,000,000, St. Patrick's at $7,500,000, and St. John's at $1,500,000. But, although the city gets no income from all this land Father Killeckerbocker cut at least part to himself as the largest holder of nontaxable land in this country.

Living Models.
Whether or not visitors to New York are to be afforded the novel spectacle of living models in show windows in place of the wax figures now used for the display of gowns and hats, remains to be seen. At present fashionable New York is busily discussing the possibilities of such a plan, which was suggested at a recent convention. The strongest supporters of the scheme are the show and chorus girls of the city, who would welcome the chance to wear the latest creations and become the center of attraction behind a plate glass window instead of being secondary to the star on the stage. Moreover it would afford a source of revenue during dull seasons. On the other hand, a well known dreamer's model thinks the idea is not practical since she is certain that the public is too crude to understand such an idea and that the window models would be ruined. "I don't know whether the plan would help sales," said a store manager. "There would be seven men to one woman in front of the windows. Even the traffic cops would forget autos and be drawn into the mob. And it would be hard to get the right women models for such exhibitions. To show off the gowns within the right kind of window in them would be a waste of time." One of the city's most prominent illustrators has come out in favor of the scheme and so the discussion continues. It is certain, however, that it will be necessary to call out the reserves at the first trial of the living model plan.

Wall Street Wonders.
Wall Street seems to have invented a new game, or rather a modern form of an old one, for at present it is indulging in the query of "Money, money, who has the money?" That there is plenty of cash somewhere seems to be as certain as the location of the earth, and the eagerness of finance are eyeing each other suspiciously and wondering what is the matter. Brokers view the dull market with gloomy faces wondering what is responsible for the present low prices. Trust decisions, crop conditions, and many other factors are discussed without furnishing a satisfactory explanation. It has been pointed out, however, that the holdings in large corporations are now much more widely distributed than was the case a few years ago, a recent compilation of figures showing that the securities of 171 of the big organizations are scattered among nearly 500,000 persons, thus indicating a more general knowledge and interest in corporation earnings. Everywhere economies are being sought. Holders of railroad securities, for instance, are realizing that the loss through which the railroads now lose millions of dollars annually in connection with the transportation of the mails to be stopped by some more equitable readjustment on the part of the government which will at least eliminate this loss, and make possible the application of the increased income to dividends or betterments. Holders of industrial securities, who a few years ago knew nothing of the condition of the market for any particular product, now watch the markets of the world. Altogether the present day investor or speculator is becoming less prone to seek advice as to how he shall buy or sell, and more prone to inform himself concerning conditions and act accordingly, and in this way he is in part the answer to Wall Street's question.

Summer Sales.
That summer sales from the time of the economic standpoint, the most extensive period of the year, has just been revealed here as the result of a curious investigation of the effect of the hot months on the public purse. It has been discovered, for instance, that shoes wear out from ten to twenty per cent. faster in summer, due to the contact with heated pavements while the leather is parched, and as there are nearly 4,000,000 pairs of shoes always on the go in the greater city the added expense from this item amounts to nearly $1,000,000. Likewise tobacco sales report largely increased sales in hot weather although there is no increase in smoking. This is due to the fact that the heat forces the tobacco, making consumption for more rapid, with the result that four cigars or cigarettes hardly go as far as do three during the winter months. The presence of summer dust shortens the life of felt hats nearly fifty per cent. due to the constant brushing necessary to remove it. Underwear and hosiery likewise give a much shorter period of service, as do such other articles as collars, shirts, and handkerchiefs. Moreover men spend far more money on their hair in summer than in winter, because of the need of more frequent hair cuts and shaves. Altogether it is estimated that the unavoidable increase in expense caused by warm weather amounts, in this city, to at least $10,000,000.

The riddle of the sphinx, which has perplexed philosophers for ages, is in a fair way to be solved in this city at least. This remarkable achievement, which, if it is accomplished, will be brought about by women, contemplates the abolishing of the sphinx and with it of course the riddle. The movement under way is not, however, the result of piqued feminine curiosity, but a part of the campaign for the improvement of public art appreciation undertaken by the Municipal Art society. The reason for the proposed abolishing of the sphinx is due to its complex nature, which the average citizen finds extremely undesirable influence on the concepts of the young. The movers for the abolishing of the sphinx are persons from the city of the ancient times. The case of two boys who recently were arrested for indulging in a fight in an effort to decide the identity of the sphinx. One of the precocious youths insisted that the figure in question was that of a dog because of its tail, while the other held that it was a woman, basing his argument on the face. Even boys could not settle the matter and so the art workers have decided that any figure exerting such an influence could not be made an instrument in the development of artistic appreciation and should be abolished. As a result it would seem that women are about to get even with the baffling sphinx by excluding her, or it, from the city.

NOTES FOR CITY FARMERS ONLY.

(By H. L. RANN.)

The White Leghorn pullet sells mainly on her beauty and the graceful lines of her figure, and if she is not kept well groomed she will prove a big drag on the market as hot air in the pen. The White Leghorn with a set of light, blooming feathers is an unsalable as side park in Rome. You don't mind freedom on the Plymouth Rock, for she comes in to the world looking like a bargain sale of bedroom wall paper, but you might as well try to sell lingerie in the Zulu Islands as to dispose of a White Leghorn whose face looks as if it had been run through a coffee grinder. Run the bird around the block until the freckles come to the surface to breathe, after which they can be easily removed with a garden trowel.

A Journal says of poultry that in cold weather the average hen should not be required to cover more than eleven eggs at one setting. That depends upon the size and elasticity of the hen. We had a hen once that was so half-legged you could throw a soapstone through her underpinning without ruffling a tail feather, and when she bent over to pick up a grub she resembled a zinc cylinder of the horse shoe type. That hen has been known to recline in a sitting posture on two-toes, curled eggs without running a bone through a single shell, but who was an exception. Nevertheless, if we had a herd of pullets which couldn't build up the elevation of more than eleven eggs at one time we would start a holocaust in the henery.

The man who is too stingy to give a dollar to the struggling little church his wife and children attend is usually the one who works his horses all day Sunday. Some men are as tight as the freight conductor who wouldn't carry his own mother. Economy is a good thing, but when a man follows it up until he looks like the hide on a shellback hickory, he will find himself about as popular as green onions at a pink tea.

Recovered Her Sight.
After being totally blind for twelve years, a woman eighty-seven years old—Mrs. Hayland, of Taunton, England, has received back her sight. During these years she had prayed that she should regain her sight, and about a month ago she could see a glimmer of light. Gradually the blind vision has disappeared and she can now see what time it is by the church clock 100 yards away. She saw a motor car for the first time a few days ago.

Necessary Labor.
Everything within and about us shows that it never was intended that man should be idle. Our own health and comfort and the welfare and happiness of those around us, all require that man should labor. Mind, body, soul, all alike suffer and rot by idleness, the idler is a source of mental and moral offense to everybody around. He is a nuisance to the world and needs abatement for the public good, like any other source of pestilence.

Gray Hair.
Hair should be allowed to grow gray naturally. All dyes made of mercury or lead are dangerous and destroy the beauty and color of the hair. Let us gracefully accept the snowy locks of age. They harmonize with the face which has been changed by time and sorrow. Many faces are softened and beautified by white hair. It is more graceful and dignified not to attempt to repair the ravages of time.

DEMOCRATS ANXIOUS TO MEET FAIR WEEK

Party Leaders Here and All Over the State Would Hold Important Meeting in Milwaukee.

There are many local Democrats and leaders of the party all over the state who are interested in the coming meeting of the Democratic state central committee and are anxious that the call for the Democratic state central committee meeting at which a national committeeman as successor to Timothy E. Ryan is to be selected, should be held as soon as possible.

J. E. Davies, chairman of the Democratic state central committee, could not be reached at Madison today, it being stated at his office that they did not know where he was and that he would not be in during the day.

Want Meeting Sept. 12.
It was said by other Democrats at Madison, who have seen Mr. Davies since his return from Europe, that he would probably leave the call for the meeting some time this week. Milwaukee Democrats are urging that the meeting be held Sept. 12, or on the evening of Tuesday of state fair week under the idea if the meeting is held on that night there will be a larger attendance of the rank and file of the party for a conference and that a great deal can be done in the way of organization at the meeting.

Work For Candidates.
The rank and file of the party also seem to desire that the meeting of the state central committee should be held state fair week as they desire to be here when the Democratic National committeeman is selected.

A great deal of work is being done for both Charles H. Davies of Madison and J. E. Davies of Milwaukee, candidates for the national committee, while some quiet work is also being done for Daniel Grady of Portage.

The erection of this new building means the extension of Janesville's business section down Main street as far as the library in a solid line, and is another indication of Janesville's increasing business activity.

DELIGHTFUL PARTY TO MISS FESSENDEN

Miss Meda Stevens Was Hostess at a Breakfast Yesterday Morning—Misses Spencer Entertain.

Evansville, Aug. 16.—One of the most delightful affairs which has been given in Evansville this summer was a breakfast this morning given by Miss Meda Stevens at her home on North Madison street for Miss Maudie Fessenden. Chatters of people, parties tied with white ribbons were at each place, the one for the guest of honor differing from the others, in that it was of pure white panache arranged in brilliant bouquets effect. Panache were also scattered capriciously over the table. Taken together the flowers resting on the snowy linen made the table unusually attractive.

A complete surprise was in store for the guests and came when the engagement of Miss Stevens and Robert H. Condie of Menomonee, Wis., was announced previous to the breakfast which was served in four courses. Covers were laid for eighteen.

Another party which was equally enjoyed was given yesterday afternoon by the Misses Allee and Bessie Spencer at their charming new home. Each guest was requested to bring a trinket and the afternoon was spent in embrodering blocks for a memory quilt which was presented to Miss Fessenden. At five o'clock a delicious two-course luncheon was served, there being thirty young ladies present.

Inculcating Religion.
The falling off in attendance in the various churches and the lack of interest on the part of young people in religious matters has had the attention of the authorities of Janesville, where the supreme court has decided that parents must provide religious instruction for their children and that the instruction must be in keeping with the faith of the parents.

Home and "Boughten" Bread.
It appears that from 60 to 70 per cent. of the bread used in New York city is actually baked by women in the home, and even a $25,000,000 bread trust will have hard work to persuade many of these women that the scientific bread turned out by the baking companies day after day under uniform conditions is an improvement on the home product.
